Compromise Reached On Foreign Aid

Poland, Yugo Trade Status Is Restored

House And Senate Conferees Agree Difference In Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House-Senate conferees agreed Thursday night on a compromise $3,599,000,000 foreign aid bill that also restores the President's authority to give Poland and Yugoslavia "most favored nation" trade status.

The bill would authorize another year of economic, military and technical assistance overseas.

The late President Kennedy asked a $4.53 billion authorization but the House cut the total to $3.5 billion and the Senate voted only $3.7 billion.

The compromise bill goes first to the House, which is expected to consider it next week, and then to the Senate. The authorization still must be followed by an appropriation bill to provide the actual money.

No Trouble Over Money

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate conferees said the money items caused little trouble.

But a terrific wrangle ensued before a final agreement on retaining authority for trade concessions to Poland and Yugoslavia. The House bill had no such provision. The Senate added the authority, which was removed in the 1962 foreign trade law.

Before finally agreeing to take the section, the House conferees won agreement on a provision to forbid the President from extending the trade concessions to any other Iron Curtain country — a move that limits them rigidly to Poland and Yugoslavia.

Birth Control Battle

Another major fight developed over a Senate provision, sponsored by Fulbright, to authorize use of economic aid grant funds for birth control studies. The provision was watered down to permit use of such funds "to conduct research into the problems of population growth," with no reference to "control."

The compromise bill authorizes $1 billion for military aid; $925 million for development loans; $220 million for outright economic grants; $525 million for "Alliance for Progress" development loans for Latin America; $380 million for "supporting assistance" to back up military aid; $160 million for the President's contingency fund and $180 million for a special Latin American development fund.

A Light For Freed U.S. Colonel

Col. James K. Chenault of Sherman, Tex., gets a light for his cigar from Richard Cushing in Caracas, Venezuela, yesterday after being freed by Red terrorists. With them is Mrs. Chenault. The 46-year-old Chenault, deputy chief of the U.S. military mission in Venezuela, was kidnapped Nov. 27 by the terrorists to propagandize their faltering fight against Venezuela's government. Chenault Released By Red Terrorists

Captors Tried To Brainwash Colonel

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Red terrorists freed U.S. Col. James K. Chenault unharmed at dawn Thursday, belatedly keeping a promise they made when they kidnaped him Nov. 27 to propagandize their faltering fight against Venezuela's government.

"It's a great feeling to be free again," said Chenault, 46, Texas-born, deputy chief of the U.S. military mission in Venezuela.

He was released in a residential district east of the capital's business center. He looked tired but otherwise was in good condition after 191 hours of imprisonment which he said he was forced to spend in pajamas in a modest home somewhere in Caracas.

Chenault told a news conference his Spanish-speaking captors — members of the Armed Forces of National Liberation—tried brainwashing, but that he responded with some facts about American life — "The status of the military in the United States, our laws, our police system and family life."

"I don't know if they were interested, but they listened," he said.

Chenault said he was watched constantly by two guards, but received reasonably good treatment, considering the circumstances.

"I was urged to read books on communism, some printed in Czechoslovakia, but I rejected them," he said. "One of my captors hammered away at me continually in an attempt at political indoctrination, describing the virtues of communism."

Under FALN plans announced by telephone to newspapers immediately after four armed youths abducted Chenault when he left his home last week, he was to have been released Saturday. That was the eve of a national election which the FALN hoped to sabotage in its drive to wreck democratic processes and overthrow President Romulo Betancourt's moderate government.

The terrorist drive fizzled. A record number of Venezuelans ignored death threats to all in the streets and turned out to vote. The leader in the seven-man presidential race, in returns still being tabulated, is Raul Leoni, the candidate of Betancourt's Democratic Action party.

The new coalition put Pietro Nenni's hammer and sickle Socialist party back in the government for the first time since 1947.

That year Italy's great postwar premier, Alcide de Gasperi, kicked Nenni's Socialists and Palmiro Togliatti's Communists out of the government and said they could never come back.

The two powerful left-wing parties carried their battle to the streets and squares in a year of rioting that almost overthrew the young Italian democracy.

Togliatti, minister of justice until De Gasperi formed his all-Christian Democrat majority government in 1947, remains alone as the major leaders of the opposition.

"Hired Killing" Case Is Placed In Jury's Hands

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —The fate of T. Eugene Thompson, accused of masterminding the murder of his pretty heiress wife for $1 million insurance and the love of a mistress, was placed in the hands of a jury Thursday.

Judge Rolf Fosseen handed the sensational "murder for hire" case to the six men and six women at 3:85 p.m. CST after the prosecution pleaded that they find the little criminal attorney guilty of first degree murder and the defense charged there were "more missing links" than facts in the state's case.

The Hennepin County district court judge told the jury it should return one of two verdicts — guilty of first degree murder or innocent.

Fosseen revoked Thompson's $100,000 bond, thought to be the highest ever levied against an accused person in Minnesota, and turned the boyish-faced lawyer over to custody of the sheriff's office pending a verdict.

The judge told the jurors, who had sat through a marathon trial now in its sixth week, that they must be "uninfluenced by pity or by passion and prejudice" as they debated whether to send Thompson, 36, to prison for life.

While the judge talked, several jurors stared intently at Thompson as if they were trying to decide whether the promising St. Paul lawyer could be guilty in the bludgeon-stabbing slaying of his wife, Carol, 34.

Fosseen said the judge, not the jury, assesses the penalty in Minnesota. Conviction of first degree murder carries a life sentence. The state outlawed capital punishment more than a half century ago.

In a prolonged closing argument, defense counsel Hyam Segell blasted the prosecution's case as a flimsy concoction based on questionable testimony by "five hoodlums," one a "drunken stumble bum and benzedrine addict, "who admitted the actual killing.

Fund Drive For Kennedy Memorial Library Slated

BOSTON (AP)—Members of the Kennedy family and the head of Harvard University invited people everywhere Thursday to contribute toward a $6-million fund for a John F. Kennedy Memorial Library "that will belong to all the people."

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said his assassinated brother "has been deprived of the personal enjoyment of such a library, but its speedy completion would be his dearest wish."

Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey said a newly organized charitable corporation for the library "will provide a vehicle for the tangible expression of love and respect for the late president now evident in this country and abroad."

He also said, "The thousands of his fellow citizens who have been eagerly seeking a way of honoring his memory may find this memorial library a most appropriate way of carrying out their desires."

The attorney general, the Harvard president and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., announced the fund-raising drive at a news conference.

Harvard University donated more than two acres of land for the library building — a site which President Kennedy inspected Oct. 21, just one month and a day before he was assassinated in Dallas, Tex.

The proposed site is within view of rows of buildings which house the men of Harvard, including Winthrop House, President Kennedy's dormitory in his undergraduate days.

X15 And U2 Team Up In 'Sky Spy' Project

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — An X15 rocket plane — coming close to its own speed mark of 4,104 miles an hour — paired with a high flying U2 Thursday in a research project aimed at finding ways to improve "sky spy" techniques.

The flight plan called for cameras in each plane to make pictures of the same stretch of ground between here and Delamar Lake, Nev., 60 miles northwest of Las Vegas, where the X15 was dropped by its B52 mother ship.

The X15 hit 4,023 m.p.h. en route to 100,000 feet on this flight, which also was to test a new navigational instrument, called a cross-range indicator, in the rocket plane.

JFK Probers Seek Power To Subpoena

Raises Possibility Of Public Hearings Into Assassination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential commission probing the assassination of President John F. Kennedy decided Thursday to ask Congress for power to subpoena witnesses and records bearing on the tragedy in Dallas.

Congress is expected to vote the power quickly. This raised the possibility that the commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren may hold hearings, public or closed, to make sure it is armed with every scrap of information available.

But Warren, announcing the decision after a 2½-hour initial meeting behind guarded doors, told reporters no conclusions were reached on whether to hold hearings or on other matters. He called a second session for Friday.

"Sad And Solemn Duty"

"The commission has a very sad and very solemn duty to perform, but one that is of great importance to the country," the chief justice said.

The meeting was in one of Washington's most imposing and best-guarded buildings — the National Archives, which houses the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and other historic documents. The session merely launched the task of setting up procedures, office and staff for the commission, Warren said.

"We are deliberating somewhat in the dark," he added, "because we have no reports as yet from any agency of the government.

FBIs Report Awaited

"The information we have now is little more than what we have learned through the news media."

The edges of newspaper clippings were visible in the manila folders brought into the meeting by some members of the commission.

The FBI's report on the case, embracing findings of half a dozen other federal agencies, is not yet complete. Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach attended Thursday's meeting, but it was learned later that he gave no indication when the FBI study will be available.

Lodge Blasted By Mrs. Nhu

PARIS (AP) — Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the widowed former first lady of South Viet Nam, said Thursday U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is "a bewildered nanny" in the hands of "South Vietnamese assassins."

Mrs. Nhu charged the military coup that drove her family from power made Lodge what he wanted to become, "the governor general" for South Viet Nam. Her husband, and her brother-in-law, President Ngo Dinh Diem, were killed in the Saigon coup of Nov. 1-2.

The charges against Lodge and the United States were made in Rome in a statement handed out by Mrs. Nhu as she left for Paris, where she said she had been asked in Rome and gave her answers.

Mrs. Nhu said she hopes President Johnson and Americans "never think in catastrophic innocence or candid malignity to be loyal and faithful only with gangsters."

Johnson Drive For Rights Bill Pays Dividends

House Hearings Slated To Start Within 60 Days

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson's campaign to get the civil rights bill moving paid its first dividends Thursday. The House now is expected to act on the measure within 60 days.

There was no official word of agreement on a timetable for the bill. But there was every indication that a bipartisan arrangement was in the making to move it through the House Rules Committee and through the House in January. Senate action may take several more months.

The bill, aimed at the elimination of racial discrimination in voting, employment, education, public accommodations and the use of federal funds, is the number one item on Johnson's legislative priority list.

Bill Before Rules Committee

The measure, extracted by the late President Kennedy from the House Judiciary Committee after months of bickering, has been before the Southern - led Rules Committee for two weeks. In the usual course, all big bills must be cleared by the rules committee.

Until Thursday, Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., leader of the House conservative Southern bloc, had given no indication he planned to move it despite private appeals from speaker John W. McCormack and other leaders.

Johnson, early this week, gave McCormack and other civil rights supporters the go-ahead to try to take the bill away from Smith if the Virginian would not move. That effort was building up to the circulation of a petition Monday that could have pushed the bill to the floor without rules committee sanction.

Smith Promises Hearings

Thursday, Smith made his first offer. He promised to call the bill up for hearings "reasonably soon in January." At the same time, House Republicans, who hold the balance of power on civil rights, filled in some of the blanks left by Smith's statement. First, ranking GOP member Clarence J. Brown, Ohio, said there would be no "undue delay" in clearing the bill through the rules group.

Then, House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind., said he had informed Johnson he would help push the bill through by the end of January if the administration would let the Rules Committee process it.

Ex-Sen. Lehman Dies At Age 85 Of Heart Attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, 85, once President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "right arm" and spearhead of a Democratic reform movement that overthrew Tammany Hall, died Thursday of a heart attack.

Lehman, also four times governor of New York State, was stricken in his Park Avenue home. Friends said he had been preparing to drive to Washington to receive a freedom award at a White House luncheon Friday.

Lehman terminated a career as a financier at the age of 50 and started his political career as a close associate of Roosevelt, who often called him "my good right arm."

He also served as wartime head of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation and later became director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Agency.

Tributes hailed him as a humanitarian.

Lehman was one of 31 prominent Americans scheduled to be honored at the White House on Friday with presidential medals for freedom, with a citation that read:

"Citizen and statesman, he has used wisdom and compassion as the tools of government and has made politics the highest form of public service."

"The shock of this loss is heightened by the mourning we share for President Kennedy," said State Democratic Chairman William H. McKeon. Lehman was a warm supporter of John F. Kennedy, assassinated less than two weeks ago.

26 Hungarian Miners Killed By Explosion

BUDAPEST (UPI)—Twenty-six miners were reported Thursday to have been killed and four injured in an explosion that ripped through a Hungarian coal mine shortly after a night shift crew of youthful miners went on duty.

Unofficial sources here said the average age of the men killed was about 23. Two of the dead had just reported back to their jobs for the first time since returning home from two years of military service.

It was the third disaster to hit the mine—the Tatabanya pits 30 miles northwest of Budapest—since 1951 when 80 men were killed in a gas explosion. Last year, seven men were killed in a cave-in in the same mine.

Arlington Plot Not Deeded To Kennedys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department said Thursday the three acres at Arlington National Cemetery in which the graves of President Kennedy and two of his children are located "are not deeded to the Kennedy family."

The area remains a part of the national cemetery, the department said.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, had said Wednesday night that the three acres had been "turned over to the Kennedy family."

Top Officials Told Balance Has Improved

President Declares U.S. Must Be Strong And Temperate, Too

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson was reported on high authority Thursday night to have told State Department officials that the international balance of power has improved basically in the last three years and that "I have not become President to give away this advantage."

To an assemblage of top-level officials who carry out foreign policy, and to the National Security Council, which is concerned with military policy, the President was reported to have said that the United States must be strong, and that it also must be "just temperate and patient."

The new chief executive met for the first time Thursday with the NSC, plus other executives in the security field brought in for this occasion. This was at the White House.

Then he motored to the State Department to address about 800 senior officers, from Secretary Dean Rusk on down the line, in the departmental auditorium.

Power Balance Improves

Johnson was described as having said that half the explanation for a sense of hope that was developing in the last months of the late President John F. Kennedy's administration lies in a basic improvement in the balance of power.

He added a sentence about not giving away this advantage, and another that the United States must be temperate, too.

The appearance at the State Department came toward the close of another long, arduous day for the new chief executive, a day on which he tried his hand at person-to-person contact in an effort to prod Congress into swifter action on a tax cut and on civil rights legislation.

Johnson talked taxes at an unannounced luncheon at the White House with Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. He talked civil rights with House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana at breakfast time.

Action Likely In January

There were no immediate, perceptible results, and the prospect remained that action on both key measures would be deferred, at least until next month.

But Byrd did schedule closed sessions of his committee, starting Wednesday, to work over the $11 - billion tax-cut bill already passed by the House. He predicted there would be some decisions on some parts of it this year and on the rest of it in January.

The President also got an invitation to go back to Dallas, Tex., where John F. Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22 and where Johnson took the presidential oath of office.

Johnson has made the tax and civil rights bills the showpieces of his legislative program just as Kennedy did.

Halleck has opposed resort to a petition to force the rights bill out of the hands of the House Rules Committee headed by Virginia Democrat Howard W. Smith.

Halleck told reporters he predicted to Johnson that a civil rights bill will pass the House before the end of January.

60-Pound Turkey World's Biggest

LONDON (AP) — British turkey fanciers Thursday claimed to have come up with the biggest turkey in the world.

This one weighed in at the International Poultry Show at 60 pounds 13 ounces — and easily won the 1963 competition for heaviest turkey of the year.

Hugh Arnold, head of the British firm which bred the champ, said the bird had received no special diet.

Connally, Shot When JFK Assassinated, Goes Home

AUSTIN (UPI) —Gov. John Connally of Texas, grieviously wounded in the assassination of President Kennedy but not mending rapidly, came home Thursday from Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas.

The three Connally chlidren — John, 17; Sharon, 14, and Mark, 11—met the 46-year-old governor and his wife Nellie at Austin Municipal Airport. Connally and his son John shook hands.

But the other two children threw their arms around their father and kissed his cheeks. They also kissed their mother, who has been in Dallas at the governor's bedside.

The second of three bullets fired by Kennedy's assassin Nov. 22 passed through Connally's body, broke his right wrist in two places and lodged in his right thigh.

"Feeling Fine"

"I'm feeling fine," Connally said when he stepped out of his plane. "My chest is in good shape. My leg is doing well. The only problem is my right wrist."

His wrist will have to remain in a cast 90 days or more and it will be six months before doctors can tell whether he will have full use of his wrist and hand.

Connally and his family went directly to the gubernatorial mansion. He does not expect to leave it much for the rest of the month.

Raises Possibility Of Public Hearings Into Assassination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential commission probing the assassination of President John F. Kennedy decided Thursday to ask Congress for power to subpoena witnesses and records bearing on the tragedy in Dallas.

Congress is expected to vote the power quickly. This raised the possibility that the commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren may hold hearings, public or closed, to make sure it is armed with every scrap of information available.

But Warren, announcing the decision after a 2½-hour initial meeting behind guarded doors, told reporters no conclusions were reached on whether to hold hearings or on other matters. He called a second session for Friday.

"Sad And Solemn Duty"

"The commission has a very sad and very solemn duty to perform, but one that is of great importance to the country," the chief justice said.

The meeting was in one of Washington's most imposing and best-guarded buildings — the National Archives, which houses the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and other historic documents. Arlington Plot Not Deeded To Kennedys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department said Thursday the three acres at Arlington National Cemetery in which the graves of President Kennedy and two of his children are located "are not deeded to the Kennedy family."

The area remains a part of the national cemetery, the department said.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, had said Wednesday night that the three acres had been "turned over to the Kennedy family."

House Hearings Slated To Start Within 60 Days

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson's campaign to get the civil rights bill moving paid its first dividends Thursday. The House now is expected to act on the measure within 60 days.

There was no official word of agreement on a timetable for the bill. But there was every indication that a bipartisan arrangement was in the making to move it through the House Rules Committee and through the House in January. Senate action may take several more months.

The bill, aimed at the elimination of racial discrimination in voting, employment, education, public accommodations and the use of federal funds, is the number one item on Johnson's legislative priority list.

Bill Before Rules Committee

The measure, extracted by the late President Kennedy from the House Judiciary Committee after months of bickering, has been before the Southern - led Rules Committee for two weeks. In the usual course, all big bills must be cleared by the rules committee.

Until Thursday, Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., leader of the House conservative Southern bloc, had given no indication he planned to move it despite private appeals from speaker John W. McCormack and other leaders.

Johnson, early this week, gave McCormack and other civil rights supporters the go-ahead to try to take the bill away from Smith if the Virginian would not move. That effort was building up to the circulation of a petition Monday that could have pushed the bill to the floor without rules committee sanction.

Smith Promises Hearings

Thursday, Smith made his first offer. He promised to call the bill up for hearings "reasonably soon in January." At the same time, House Republicans, who hold the balance of power on civil rights, filled in some of the blanks left by Smith's statement. First, ranking GOP member Clarence J. Brown, Ohio, said there would be no "undue delay" in clearing the bill through the rules group.

Then, House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind., said he had informed Johnson he would help push the bill through by the end of January if the administration would let the Rules Committee process it.

Ex-Sen. Lehman Dies At Age 85 Of Heart Attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, 85, once President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "right arm" and spearhead of a Democratic reform movement that overthrew Tammany Hall, died Thursday of a heart attack.

Lehman, also four times governor of New York State, was stricken in his Park Avenue home. Friends said he had been preparing to drive to Washington to receive a freedom award at a White House luncheon Friday.

Lehman terminated a career as a financier at the age of 50 and started his political career as a close associate of Roosevelt, who often called him "my good right arm."

He also served as wartime head of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation and later became director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Agency.

Tributes hailed him as a humanitarian.

Lehman was one of 31 prominent Americans scheduled to be honored at the White House on Friday with presidential medals for freedom, with a citation that read:

"Citizen and statesman, he has used wisdom and compassion as the tools of government and has made politics the highest form of public service."

"The shock of this loss is heightened by the mourning we share for President Kennedy," said State Democratic Chairman William H. McKeon. Lehman was a warm supporter of John F. Kennedy, assassinated less than two weeks ago.

26 Hungarian Miners Killed By Explosion

BUDAPEST (UPI)—Twenty-six miners were reported Thursday to have been killed and four injured in an explosion that ripped through a Hungarian coal mine shortly after a night shift crew of youthful miners went on duty.

Unofficial sources here said the average age of the men killed was about 23. Two of the dead had just reported back to their jobs for the first time since returning home from two years of military service.

It was the third disaster to hit the mine—the Tatabanya pits 30 miles northwest of Budapest—since 1951 when 80 men were killed in a gas explosion. Last year, seven men were killed in a cave-in in the same mine.

Top Officials Told Balance Has Improved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson was reported on high authority Thursday night to have told State Department officials that the international balance of power has improved basically in the last three years and that "I have not become President to give away this advantage."

To an assemblage of top-level officials who carry out foreign policy, and to the National Security Council, which is concerned with military policy, the President was reported to have said that the United States must be strong, and that it also must be "just temperate and patient."

The new chief executive met for the first time Thursday with the NSC, plus other executives in the security field brought in for this occasion. This was at the White House.

Then he motored to the State Department to address about 800 senior officers, from Secretary Dean Rusk on down the line, in the departmental auditorium.

Power Balance Improves

Johnson was described as having said that half the explanation for a sense of hope that was developing in the last months of the late President John F. Kennedy's administration lies in a basic improvement in the balance of power.

He added a sentence about not giving away this advantage, and another that the United States must be temperate, too.

The appearance at the State Department came toward the close of another long, arduous day for the new chief executive, a day on which he tried his hand at person-to-person contact in an effort to prod Congress into swifter action on a tax cut and on civil rights legislation.

Johnson talked taxes at an unannounced luncheon at the White House with Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. He talked civil rights with House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana at breakfast time.

Action Likely In January

There were no immediate, perceptible results, and the prospect remained that action on both key measures would be deferred, at least until next month.

But Byrd did schedule closed sessions of his committee, starting Wednesday, to work over the $11 - billion tax-cut bill already passed by the House. He predicted there would be some decisions on some parts of it this year and on the rest of it in January.

The President also got an invitation to go back to Dallas, Tex., where John F. Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22 and where Johnson took the presidential oath of office.

Johnson has made the tax and civil rights bills the showpieces of his legislative program just as Kennedy did.

Halleck has opposed resort to a petition to force the rights bill out of the hands of the House Rules Committee headed by Virginia Democrat Howard W. Smith.

Halleck told reporters he predicted to Johnson that a civil rights bill will pass the House before the end of January.

60-Pound Turkey World's Biggest

LONDON (AP) — British turkey fanciers Thursday claimed to have come up with the biggest turkey in the world.

This one weighed in at the International Poultry Show at 60 pounds 13 ounces — and easily won the 1963 competition for heaviest turkey of the year.

Hugh Arnold, head of the British firm which bred the champ, said the bird had received no special diet.

X15 And U2 Team Up In 'Sky Spy' Project

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — An X15 rocket plane — coming close to its own speed mark of 4,104 miles an hour — paired with a high flying U2 Thursday in a research project aimed at finding ways to improve "sky spy" techniques.

The flight plan called for cameras in each plane to make pictures of the same stretch of ground between here and Delamar Lake, Nev., 60 miles northwest of Las Vegas, where the X15 was dropped by its B52 mother ship.

The X15 hit 4,023 m.p.h. en route to 100,000 feet on this flight, which also was to test a new navigational instrument, called a cross-range indicator, in the rocket plane.

Connally, Shot When JFK Assassinated, Goes Home

AUSTIN (UPI) —Gov. John Connally of Texas, grieviously wounded in the assassination of President Kennedy but not mending rapidly, came home Thursday from Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas.

The three Connally children — John, 17; Sharon, 14, and Mark, 11—met the 46-year-old governor and his wife Nellie at Austin Municipal Airport. Connally and his son John shook hands.

But the other two children threw their arms around their father and kissed his cheeks. They also kissed their mother, who has been in Dallas at the governor's bedside.

The second of three bullets fired by Kennedy's assassin Nov. 22 passed through Connally's body, broke his right wrist in two places and lodged in his right thigh.

"Feeling Fine"

"I'm feeling fine," Connally said when he stepped out of his plane. "My chest is in good shape. My leg is doing well. The only problem is my right wrist."

His wrist will have to remain in a cast 90 days or more and it will be six months before doctors can tell whether he will have full use of his wrist and hand.

Connally and his family went directly to the gubernatorial mansion. He does not expect to leave it much for the rest of the month.

Pope's Holy Land Visit Seen As Peace Mission

JERUSALEM (AP)—The visit of Pope Paul VI to the Holy Land early in January was seen in this divided city Thursday night as a pilgrimage to improve Roman Catholic relations with Jews and Moslems.

Some even expressed belief that the Pope's unprecedented 1,500-mile journey might help to allay anger and suspicion that wall off Jews from the Moslem Arabs in the volatile Middle East.

One concern expressed early was for the safety of the pontiff in his brief travels through the holy places, some in Moslem Jordan, the others in Israel. Tempers are high and Jew and Arab often shoot each other.

A Jordanian official said "the most rigid security measures" will be in force while the pontiff visits the holy places of Jordan as a personal guest of King Hussein, a Moslem.

Neither in the Israeli section of Jerusalem nor in the Jordan quarter had any official word been received from the Vatican of the pontiff's plans. Never before has a Pope visited the Holy Land although some made the journey before elevation to the papacy.

All officials knew was what has been publicly announced—that the Pope said in Vatican City on Wednesday he would make a brief visit to the Holy Land "on behalf of peace among men," and the later Vatican statement that the trip would be made in the first 10 days of January.

However, tentative plans could be based on his expressed desire to see the holy places. In Jordan are the Holy Sepulchre in the walled old city of Jerusalem; Bethlehem, where the Bible says Jesus was born, and the Garden of Gethsemane, where the Romans came to arrest him and start him on the way to the Cross.

Inside Israel are Nazareth, where Jesus was a carpenter; the Sea of Galilee, and Ainkarem, birthplace of John the Baptist.

Signs Of Thaw Between Ike, Truman Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Signs of a thaw in the coolness between former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower have been detected by those who observed them here at President John F. Kennedy's funeral.

The two ex-presidents, who inflicted scars on each other during the 1952 presidential campaign, had a friendly half-hour chat following the funeral, telling stories from their pasts.

"It was just like two old soldiers recalling the times and the people they'd known," said Tom Gavin, a long - time friend of Truman's who accompanied him to Washington for the funeral.

Gavin, recounting the visit in Kansas City where he is a public relations counselor, said that after the funeral Truman and his daughter, Mrs. Clifton Daniel, invited the Eisenhowers for sandwiches, tea and coffee at Blair House, where Truman and his daughter stayed during their visit.

Gavin said the two former presidents pulled their chairs close together and talked.

When they parted with a handshake, Gavin said, "you could see the warmth in their eyes."

Mrs. Daniel, who lives in New York, said she and her father accepted an invitation from the Eisenhowers to drive from the church to Arlington Cemetery for Kennedy's funeral.

SIGN OF CHRISTMAS — Workmen erect newly-arrived West Virginia red spruce on the Ellipse in view of the White House in background. The nation's Christmas tree will be a centerpiece in a pageant of peace. President Johnson will turn on the lights in one phase of the ceremonies. (AP Photofax)

Nation's Yule Tree Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) —With the aid of a big crane, workmen Thursday gingerly installed a 70-foot red spruce — the so-called National Christmas Tree — near the White House.

In addition to the big tree, loaded with hundreds of colored lights, there will be about 80 smaller ones arranged in the form of a large cross.

The annual Christmas pageant normally is held Dec. 18, but it was postponed this year until the end of the 30 - day mourning period for the late President John F. Kennedy. Dec. 22 will be the one - month anniversary of his slaying.

Placing of the tree usually marks the beginning of the annual Christmas ritual here. The tree was lowered into a six-foot hole and secured with wires after it was brought to the park on a flat bed truck.

The Interior Department said the towering evergreen came from the farm of Miss Mary Winkler on Turkey Bone Mountain near Pickens, W. Va.

Sen. Goldwater "Reassessing" His Prospects

"I don't think my support has changed from what it was," said the Arizona conservative who ranked No. 1 among potential Republican nominees in public opinion polls taken before Kennedy' death.

But Goldwater added in an interview: "I feel you can't say for sure. The whole country is in a position of flux. There's no way to assess it."

As Goldwater sized up his prospects in what he called "a new ball game with a new pitcher," there were rumblings of an organized effort to put former Vice President Richard M. Nixon — who lost to Kennedy in 1960 — into the race for the 1964 nomination.

The Washington Star reported plans are afoot to enter a slate of Nixon-pledged delegates in the New Hampshire presidential primary next March 10.

The Star quoted former GOP National Chairman Leonard Hall as saying he had met with Nixon and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in the past week to discuss the political situation.

He Wasn't Scared Of Dentist Drill

LOERRACH, Germany (AP) — A man in a dentist's chair suddenly jumped up, hurled himself through the window and ran off after landing unhurt two floors below.

It wasn't the dentist's drill that scared him off. He was a prisoner from the town jail and made his escape while a guard sat outside in the waiting room.

SEIZED BY FBI — The FBI identified this man as Stephen Harris Landesberg of New York whom it arrested yesterday. The FBI said Landesberg gave it information that sent it looking for a non-existent associate of the late Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy. (AP Photofax)

German Firm Tests Rockets

CUXHAVEN, Germany (UPI) —A West German rocket firm Thursday test fired four military rockets to an altitude of 90,000 feet and announced it has signed a contract to deliver missiles to an unnamed foreign country.

However, a West German government spokesman in Bonn said, "It is not contemplated to issue export licenses for this or any other firm to sell military rockets abroad."

The missiles fired Thursday were a two-stage rocket and three one-stage rockets. A spokesman for the firm, Weapons and Aviation Armament Corp., of Hamburg, said the firings were a "complete success." The rockets used solid fuel.

"We can produce any tactical rocket weapons system on order," firm director Richard Stengler said. "Germany has the know-how in the field, as is well known. We think we can do at least as well as the Americans and the Russians. We know what they are doing. We get their data."

Fla. Governor Defends Cape Name Change

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (UPI) — Florida Gov. Farris Bryant Thursday stoutly defended President Johnson's decision to change the name of Cape Canaveral to Cape Kennedy.

The decision has come under fire from many local residents, both on economic and historical grounds.

Opponents point out that mapmakers have used the name Canaveral to identify the Cape since about the time Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de Leon sailed along the Florida coast in 1513.

But Bryant told a news conference in Tallahassee Thursday that "the people of Florida, in the year 2063, will look back and understand what President Johnson has done and will approve."

Bryant pointed out that Canaveral means cane field in Spanish, and that while this name was appropriate enough when the Indians so designated it in the 1500's, many changes have taken place.

The governor said the activities at the Cape in the past few years were the result of new frontiers of the mind, and that the late President Kennedy more than anyone else, was identified with these new frontiers.

President Johnson issued an executive order Thanksgiving Day announcing the name change. The order applied only to the space facility at Cape Canaveral and not the peninsula itself.

But in announcing the change Johnson said: "I have also acted. . .to change the name of Cape Canaveral. It shall be known hereafter as Cape Kennedy."

In Washington, a spokesman for the geographic names board said the proposal was submitted by the President and approved by the Interior Department Nov. 27, the day before Johnson announced the change to the nation. Arthur R. Baker, a subcommittee chairman of the board charged with naming U.S. geographical locations, said no other action was required.

Two Soldiers Killed In Barracks Shooting

FORT RILEY, Kan. (UPI)—Two soldiers were killed and a third seriously wounded Thursday in a barracks shooting at this army post.

Military authorities identified the dead as Sgt. 1-C Thomas L. Storey, 37, son of Mrs. Flora Storey, of Henryetta, Okla., and Sgt. Godfrey Anderson Jr., 28, son of Mrs. Aggie Bell Anderson, of Mafinna, Fla.

Staff Sgt. Larry Johnson, 40, Albany, N.Y., was wounded seriously.

The Public Information Office said that Anderson apparently shot Storey and Johnson, then turned the gun, a .45 caliber service pistol, on himself.

Two Women Die On Md. Highways

By The Associated Press

Two women were killed in separate Maryland traffic accidents Thursday evening, raising the state's highway death toll to 536—14 less than at this time last year.

State Police said Susan Bennett, 23, of Bethesda, was killed when she was struck by a car on U. S. 240, just south of Rockville, Montgomery County. Police said she had been trying to cross the road.

A Baltimore County woman was killed and four persons were injured when their car plunged 40 feet down an embankment in Southeast Baltimore.

Police identified the woman as Phyllis Garbusca of Dundalk. She died at Baltimore City Hospital of head injuries, police said. Hospital officials said the other four persons were not seriously hurt.

Cambridge Guard Force, Once 900, Now Only 17

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — The number of National Guardsmen, which reached as high as 900 at the summer peak of racial tension in Cambridge, was reduced Thursday to 15 men and two officers.

The token force "is as low as I dare take it," said Milton A. Reckord, Maryland's adjutant general.

The guard was ordered into Cambridge June 14 when shooting, rock throwing and fires erupted over demands of Negroes for equal public accommodations, better housing and job opportunities.

The militia issued orders against mass demonstrations, the sale of alcoholic beverages and an off-the-street curfew for all 12,000 residents.

Restrictions were relaxed gradually until only the ban on demonstrations remains. The number of guardsmen was likewise cut to 500.

There will be only 17, Gen. Reckord said, "as long as both sides maintain law and order."

Just in case, Reckord said, a battalion of 500 men who live in the area of Maryland's Eastern Shore will remain on an alert status.

The seed of the double coconut (Lodoicea sechellarum) may weigh up to 40 pounds. The seeds of the Epiphytic orchids come 35,000,000 to the ounce.

Goldstein Warns Moonshine Often Menace To Health

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein warns that moonshine is usually produced under subprimitive conditions and is often a serious health menace.

"Moonshiners ignore health and sanitary standards," he says. "Old fetid hats are sometimes used as filters. Lye and animal waste are frequently used to quicken fermentation."

By the way, moonshiners don't pay taxes or buy liquor licenses and cause a "considerable" economic loss to Maryland, Goldstein added.

Kenney Appointed As U.S. Attorney

BALTIMORE (AP) — Thomas J. Kenney was appointed Thursday, as interim U.S. attorney for Maryland.

The four judges of the federal court here named Kenney to succeed Joseph D. Tydings, who resigned Nov. 22.

Kenney, 54, began practicing law in 1935 and was an assistant U.S. attorney from 1941 to 1946.

He will serve in the $16,000-a-year post until President Johnson appoints and the Senate confirms someone for the job.

Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen said the judges picked Kenney" without solicitation by him or on his behalf."

Robert F. Sweeney, an assistant Maryland attorney general, has been mentimned as a possible presidential appointee for the U.S. attorney's position. He is closely identified with the Maryland Democratic organization.

Cambridge Guard Force, Once 900, Now Only 17

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — The number of National Guardsmen, which reached as high as 900 at the summer peak of racial tension in Cambridge, was reduced Thursday to 15 men and two officers.

The token force "is as low as I dare take it," said Milton A. Reckord, Maryland's adjutant general.

The guard was ordered into Cambridge June 14 when shooting, rock throwing and fires erupted over demands of Negroes for equal public accommodations, better housing and job opportunities.

The militia issued orders against mass demonstrations, the sale of alcoholic beverages and an off-the-street curfew for all 12,000 residents.

Restrictions were relaxed gradually until only the ban on demonstrations remains. The number of guardsmen was likewise cut to 500.

There will be only 17, Gen. Reckord said, "as long as both sides maintain law and order."

Just in case, Reckord said, a battalion of 500 men who live in the area of Maryland's Eastern Shore will remain on an alert status.

The seed of the double coconut (Lodoicea sechellarum) may weigh up to 40 pounds. The seeds of the Epiphytic orchids come 35,000,000 to the ounce.

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers
Play Up Your Height Or Petite Appearance

Don't be a Miss In - Between. Emphasize your tendency towards smallness or height.

Slim dresses make you look taller, if they're softly fitted and slightly on the long side. You'll look small and delicate in full skirts, sheer gauzy fabrics and fluffy stoles.

Although much may be done to camouflage figure irregularities — for example, selecting costumes to create a certain illusion — your appearance will be more pleasing if the figure itself is well - proportioned. It can be.

No one can base his or her criterion for a beautiful figure on a definite weight or height. The important thing is the creation of good proportion between the height and weight, and a balance between the various girth measurements. It's only logical that the smaller a person, the narrower the width and thickness should be.

Bust and hips should measure the same, waist, 10 inches smaller. That's the "Rule of Ten" I often mention, the basis of ideal measurements. Do your statistics fall into this pattern? It's important that you examine your figure carefully, for a nicely proportioned figure is one of the Secrets of Charm. Now don't confuse frame structure with bone structure. Our booklet, "Do You Measure Up." gives a measurement table and also tells you how to measure yourself (you'd be amazed at the errors made daily on this). If you would care to have a copy of this booklet, send your request and 10 cents in coin to John Roberts Powers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Play Up Your Height Or Petite Appearance

Don't be a Miss In - Between. Emphasize your tendency towards smallness or height.

Slim dresses make you look taller, if they're softly fitted and slightly on the long side. You'll look small and delicate in full skirts, sheer gauzy fabrics and fluffy stoles.

Although much may be done to camouflage figure irregularities — for example, selecting costumes to create a certain illusion — your appearance will be more pleasing if the figure itself is well - proportioned. It can be.

No one can base his or her criterion for a beautiful figure on a definite weight or height. The important thing is the creation of good proportion between the height and weight, and a balance between the various girth measurements. It's only logical that the smaller a person, the narrower the width and thickness should be.

Bust and hips should measure the same, waist, 10 inches smaller. That's the "Rule of Ten" I often mention, the basis of ideal measurements. Do your statistics fall into this pattern? It's important that you examine your figure carefully, for a nicely proportioned figure is one of the Secrets of Charm. Now don't confuse frame structure with bone structure. Our booklet, "Do You Measure Up," gives a measurement table and also tells you how to measure yourself (you'd be amazed at the errors made daily on this). If you would care to have a copy of this booklet, send your request and 10 cents in coin to John Roberts Powers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Walker Named Pilot Of Year

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI) —Chief X15 pilot Joe Walker has been selected by the National Pilots Association (NPA) as its 1963 pilot of the year, it was announced Wednesday.

New Salt Water Conversion Process Is Cheaper

HOUSTON (UPI) —Bruce B. Carr of Callery Chemical Co. Callery, Pa., said Wednesday a new process for conversion of salt water to fresh can cut down the investment needed in previous conversion systems.

Carr spoke at the American Institute of Chemical Engineers annual meeting, which ended Wednesday.

Carr said to take salt out of water involves both mass and energy transfer across a physical barrier. He said the new process came out of the idea that the simplest such barrier is the line between two types of liquid, in this case the salt water and a solvent capable of dissolving water. The solvent is sent through a propane or butane flash evaporation system, then through condensation, where fresh water is recovered.

Carr said at a production level of 10 million gallons a day and operating cost level of 30 cents per thousand gallons, the system represents a capital investment around 60 cents per gallon of daily capacity.

FOR UNDERSEA DETECTION — This large teardrop-shaped protuberance is an enclosure for high-intensity sonar equipment on the USS Garcia, one of two destroyer escorts under construction at Bethlehem's San Francisco yard. Fifty-five feet long, 50 feet wide and 10 feet deep, the "dome" weighs 70 tons. It was designed for installation at the forward end of the ship so it would not be affected by turbulence caused by the hull moving through the water, be better shielded from noise created within the ship itself, and the electronic equipment within would have more range and greater accuracy. Ring Jackie Placed On JFK's Finger Returned To Her

NEW YORK (AP)—The wedding ring that Mrs. John F. Kennedy placed on her dead husband's finger was returned to her the next day, Life magazine reports.

The return of the ring was disclosed by Theodore H. White in a copyright epilogue for the late President Kennedy in the current issue of the magazine. The White House confirmed White's account.

Mrs. Kennedy transferred the ring to her assassinated husband Nov. 22 in a Dallas hospital after efforts to save his life had failed.

White, a close friend of the late president and Mrs. Kennedy, is the author of "The Making of the President." The White House said Mrs. Kennedy had read the account before publication.

In the Life article, White wrote that the day after the assassination, Kenneth O'Donnell, a White House aide, removed the ring from the president's hand in Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland and returned it to her.

Mrs. Kennedy's gesture in slipping her wedding ring off and putting it on her husband's finger was reported the day of his death by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., who said as she did so she kissed her husband on the lips.

"And so, she took a ring from her finger and placed it in his hands," he said.

White said Mrs. Kennedy was wearing the ring at Hyannis Port as she told of being horrified by reports that she might live abroad.

"I'm never going to live in Europe," White quoted her. "I'm not going to 'travel extensively abroad.' That's a desecration.

"I'm going to live in the places I lived with Jack. In Georgetown, and with the Kennedys at the Cape. They're my family. I'm going to bring up my children. I want John to grow up to be a good boy."

White said the word that the name of the missile-launching site at Cape Canaveral would be changed to "Cape Kennedy" came as a surprise to Mrs. Kennedy, although she had hoped there would be some memorial to his efforts to advance the space program.

"She remembered that, in every speech in their last days in Texas, he had spoken of how in December this nation would loft the largest rocket booster yet into the sky, making us the first in space," White wrote. "So she wanted something of his there when it went up—perhaps only his initials painted on a tiny corner of the great Saturn, where no one need even notice it."

White said Mrs. Kennedy gave this explanation of her desire to see the eternal flame lit over the late president's grave in Arlington National Cemetery:

"Whenever you drive across the bridge from Washington into Virginia, you see the Lee Mansion on the side of the hill in the distance. When Caroline was very little, the mansion was one of the first things she learned to recognize. Now, at night you can see his flame beneath the mansion for miles away."

White quoted Mrs. Kennedy: "At night, before we'd go to sleep, Jack liked to play some records; and the song he loved most came at the very end of this record. The lines he loved to hear were: Don't let it be forgot, that once there was a spot, for one brief shining moment that was known as Camelot."

She wanted to make sure that the point came clear and went on. White said: "There'll be great presidents again—and the Johnsons are wonderful, they've been wonderful to me—but there'll never be another Camelot again."

In the King Arthur legends, Camelot was the place where the king had his palace and court and where the Round Table was.

Submarine Rocket Nearly Operational

NEW YORK (AP) — The Navy announced Wednesday that its new long range submarine-to-submarine nuclear missile is moving toward operational status. The weapon works like a flying fish.

The missile is called "Subroc," a contraction for submarine rocket.

First submarine to carry the rocket was the ill-fated Thresher, which went down 200 miles off Boston April 10 with 129 aboard. A sister-ship, the Permit, since has carried out testing in the Pacific.

The Navy plans to equip 25 fast nuclear-attack subs with "Subroc." Launched underwater through torpedo tubes, the missile takes to the air at supersonic speed, then arcs back into the water at the target area. Unofficially, its range is believed to be 20 to 30 miles.

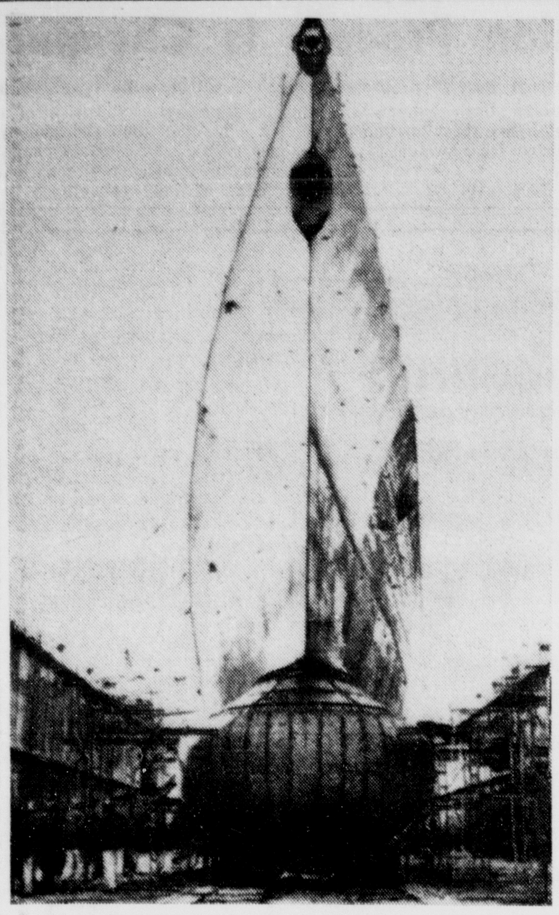
Ring Jackie Placed On JFK's Finger Returned To Her



FOR UNDERSEA DETECTION — This large teardrop-shaped protuberance is an enclosure for high-intensity sonar equipment on the USS Garcia, one of two destroyer escorts under construction at Bethlehem's San Francisco yard. Fifty-five feet long, 50 feet wide and 10 feet deep, the "dome" weighs 70 tons. It was designed for installation at the forward end of the ship so it would not be affected by turbulence caused by the hull moving through the water, be better shielded from noise created within the ship itself, and the electronic equipment within would have more range and greater accuracy. NEW YORK (AP)—The wedding ring that Mrs. John F. Kennedy placed on her dead husband's finger was returned to her the next day, Life magazine reports.

The return of the ring was disclosed by Theodore H. White in a copyright epilogue for the late President Kennedy in the current issue of the magazine. The White House confirmed White's account.

Mrs. Kennedy transferred the ring to her assassinated husband Nov. 22 in a Dallas hospital after efforts to save his life had failed.

White, a close friend of the late president and Mrs. Kennedy, is the author of "The Making of the President." The White House said Mrs. Kennedy had read the account before publication.

In the Life article, White wrote that the day after the assassination, Kenneth O'Donnell, a White House aide, removed the ring from the president's hand in Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland and returned it to her.

Grandma Who Wrote Monthly To JFK Will Be LBJ's Guest At Service Game

FAIRLESS HILLS, Pa. (UPI) — A grandmother who wrote a chatty letter to the late President Kennedy every month will see the Army - Navy football game Saturday as the guest of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Mrs. Precious Humble, attractive, "fiftyish. . .plus" by her own admission, still stunned by the rapid fire run of events which included a telephone talk with Johnson, will take her 11-year old grandson John Douglas to the game.

It was John Douglas who answered the telephone Monday afternoon and heard the magic words "Washington calling Mrs. Humble."

He explained that she was at her regular employment, office manager for a local department store. He gravely accepted the message to have his grandma make a return call.

An hour later she returned the call. The extension carried her to Maj. Gen. C. V. Clifton, military aide to Johnson.

"It was lucky I was sitting down," Mrs. Humble explained, "because he said 'the President would like to talk to you.'

"Then another voice came on and said 'This is President Johnson.'

"I could only mumble a reply," she added frankly.

"My last letter to him (Kennedy) around Nov. 1 was that I saw him on television at the Army-Navy game last year. I wrote how good he looked and how thrilled I was to see him," Mrs. Humble said.

"President Johnson said he thought President Kennedy would like me to see the game. He said two tickets would be placed in the mail for me that night.

"I picked them up at the post office Tuesday."

Mrs. Humble, a widow for five years, whose son John, died six years ago from wounds received in Naval service during World War II, said she wrote her first letter to Kennedy after his nomination and a resulting campaign visit to adjoining Levittown, Pa.

"I received one reply from him, shortly after his inauguration," Mrs. Humble said.

Here's What's New In Men's Wear For Spring

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The buyers of men's wear are all powerful souls who determine what the average man will wear in the months go come. And while the average man is trying to decide whether to buy a new fall topcoat the buyers are already working on spring.

Twice a year the store buyers descend on New York in droves and although they do examine the wares of hundreds of manufacturers, most of them do it the easy way by sitting in a comfortable theater in the Fashion Institue of Technology and watch a Broadway-type show.

The buyers are highly organized, and one of their groups is the National Association of Men's Sportwear Buyers (NASMB) which keeps them informed on what's new and teamed up this time with Holiday magazine to produce the show — a series of skits dramatizing the newest in men s wear.

Here is a rundown on what's new:

Sports shirts — They have been changed so you can tell them from dress shirts. Stripes have been widened and there is more texture — muslin, homespun weaves and linen-like textures. More expensive ones have woven-in accents, fly fronts and striped front panels. Stretch fabrics made from cotton and ployester and cotton blends abound.

Knit Shirts— The "pro look" was the keynote. Others shown were Rugby shirts with very wide horizontal stripes; Henley, a three-button placket crew-neck) boating sweaters and a knit seersucker; football jerseys (with numbers) for the beach; the ski look and winter-looking spring shirts.

Slacks — Almost all manufacturers feature stretch fabrics for comfort rather than a skin-tight fit. Teen slacks show a Western influence with wide belt loops and fancy pockets. Little change in traditional slacks except for new linen and polyester blends and colors. Golf slacks run the gamut from lime to mallard blue with emphasis on a linen-look.

Walking shorts — stripes are the big story here in all widths and textures, plus printed seersucker, madras, batiks and classic glens a.. tattersalls. More stretch fabrics.

Sweaters—Short sleeve sweaters, once a West Coast fad, seen everywhere, often with beachwear. Pro - type alpaca cardignas also are big with mohair used in lightened versions. Cardigans, the overwhelming best sellers.

Swimwear — The West Coast takes over on swimwear with the surfer look predominating—a lace - tied waist securing a higher - fitting trunk, and a large back pocket to hold wax for the surfboard and a longer leg to protect the surfer. Also new: A swim-walker short for double duty, with knitwear in three lengths accounting for half the sales.

Outerwear — early spring outerward features combinations of suede with laminated knits, with cardigans popular. Lesire coats also come in suedes and combinations for cool days, button front sports coat inspried coats in linen, sharkskin, denim and duck for warmer days. The "ski parka" is popular for beach and boating. Popular fabrics — unlined nylon taffeta, vinyl-coated madras and chambray, denim, duck and seersucker. Boating parkas are undercoated. They also stretch.

Rainwear — emphasis on raglan shoulder styling on denim weaves, deeply patterened poplins and lighter - weight blends. Stretch poplin is THE latest thing. Classic plaids and checks are lighter and so are the fabrics.

Dress shirts — White shirts still make up 80 per cent of the sales but there is new interest in stripes and patterns with multi-stripes for the more sophisticated. Many of the burgundy and bottle green stripes are against an old salt background.

Neckwear — The emphasis is on stripes. Colors are darker because of the emergence of lighter colors in suits. Prints offer sharp colors, spaced patterns and geometrics. Silk blends gradually replace all silk. Tie widths greater — up to 2½ inches.

Hats — the big volume is in sportswear - inspired numbers, with a few lightweight felts shown. There are hats for any sport you can name. New emphasis on ventilated straws with colorful bands.

Oregon Survives Fire Threat

By ZAN STARK

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) Oregon's six-year fire jinx is broken.

Jubilant state forestry officials, eyeing rain-dripping timberlands, have declared the fire season over in Western Oregon. They find it hard to believe that the state was not ravaged by flaming disaster again this year —as it has been every six years since 1933, except for 1957.

For this year forestlands were ripe for disaster.

Millions of board feet of standing timber were toppled in the savage Columbus Day, 1962, storm which raked the Oregon coastal area, killed more than a score of persons, and did nearly $200 million in damage.

The "jinx" was born in 1933 in the first great "Tillamook burn." That fire exploded over a 407-square mile are—almost half the size of the state of Rhode Island.

Destroyed was 12 billion board feet of timber—more than enough to build a million five-room houses. It was one of the worst forest disasters ever recorded in the United States.

Six years later the same region was laid waste by a fire which ravaged more than 200,000 acres. Then in 1945 the area was hit again, this time by a 182,000 acre fire.

In 1951 a series of three major blazes took a 55,000-acre toll although the Tillamook area in Northwest Oregon was spared. The myth of the terrible "six year jinx" was firmly fixed. Foresters prepared for the jinx in 1957—but there were no major fires that year.

With Oregon's timberlands this year described by State Forester Dwight L. Phipps as "potentially the most dangerous in the recorded history of the state" because of storm blowdown, officials prepared for the worst.

There were massive education campaigns — newspaper stories television appeals, radio announcements.

Timber operators and forestry officials began mapping fire-fighting strategy early this spring.

They did everything but plead with the weatherman. He's the one who saved the day. Oregon's summer was not the kind a Chamber of Commerce would order. It was unusually cool, and wet.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The buyers of men's wear are all powerful souls who determine what the average man will wear in the months go come. And while the average man is trying to decide whether to buy a new fall topcoat the buyers are already working on spring.

Twice a year the store buyers descend on New York in droves and although they do examine the wares of hundreds of manufacturers, most of them do it the easy way by sitting in a comfortable theater in the Fashion Institue of Technology and watch a Broadway-type show.

The buyers are highly organized, and one of their groups is the National Association of Men's Sportwear Buyers (NASMB) which keeps them informed on what's new and teamed up this time with Holiday magazine to produce the show — a series of skits dramatizing the newest in men's wear.

Here is a rundown on what's new:

Sports shirts — They have been changed so you can tell them from dress shirts. Stripes have been widened and there is more texture — muslin, homespun weaves and linen-like textures. More expensive ones have woven-in accents, fly fronts and striped front panels. Stretch fabrics made from cotton and ployester and cotton blends abound.

Knit Shirts— The "pro look" was the keynote. Others shown were Rugby shirts with very wide horizontal stripes; Henley, a three-button placket crewneck) boating sweaters and a knit seersucker; football jerseys (with numbers) for the beach; the ski look and winter-looking spring shirts.

Sports coats — Two - button coat edging up, but three-button the basic model. Seersucker was the most popular with lightened madras, denim and oxford close behind. Seersucker seen in burgundy and bottle green stripes. Old salt a favorite background for stripes. Irridescents popular. Blazers shown in hopsacks, linen - types and homespuns. Many color-coordinated blazers and slacks were shown.

Slacks — Almost all manufacturers feature stretch fabrics for comfort rather than a skintight fit. Teen slacks show a Western influence with wide belt loops and fancy pockets. Little change in traditional slacks except for new linen and polyester blends and colors. Golf slacks run the gamut from lime to mallard blue with emphasis on a linen-look.

Walking shorts — stripes are the big story here in all widths and textures, plus printed seersucker, madras, batiks and classic glens and tattersalls. More stretch fabrics.

Sweaters—Short sleeve sweaters, once a West Coast fad, seen everywhere, often with beachwear. Pro - type alpaca cardignas also are big with mohair used in lightened versions. Cardigans, the overwhelming best sellers.

Swimwear — The West Coast takes over on swimwear with the surfer look predominating—a lace - tied waist securing a higher - fitting trunk, and a large back pocket to hold wax for the surfboard and a longer leg to protect the surfer. Also new: A swim-walker short for double duty, with knitwear in three lengths accounting for half the sales.

Outerwear — early spring outerward features combinations of suede with laminated knits, with cardigans popular. Lesire coats also come in suedes and combinations for cool days, button front sports coat inspried coats in linen, sharkskin, denim and duck for warmer days. The "ski parka" is popular for beach and boating. Popular fabrics — unlined nylon taffeta, vinyl-coated madras and chambray, denim, duck and seersucker. Boating parkas are undercoated. They also stretch.

Rainwear — emphasis on raglan shoulder styling on denim weaves, deeply patterened poplins and lighter - weight blends. Stretch poplin is THE latest thing. Classic plaids and checks are lighter and so are the fabrics.

Dress shirts — White shirts still make up 80 per cent of the sales but there is new interest in stripes and patterns with multi-stripes for the more sophisticated. Many of the burgundy and bottle green stripes are against an old salt background.

Neckwear — The emphasis is on stripes. Colors are darker because of the emergence of lighter colors in suits. Prints offer sharp colors, spaced patterns and geometrics. Silk blends gradually replace all silk. Tie widths greater — up to 2½ inches.

Hats — the big volume is in sportswear - inspired numbers, with a few lightweight felts shown. There are hats for any sport you can name. New emphasis on ventilated straws with colorful bands.

Oregon Survives Fire Threat

By ZAN STARK

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) Oregon's six-year fire jinx is broken.

Jubilant state forestry officials, eyeing rain-dripping timberlands, have declared the fire season over in Western Oregon. They find it hard to believe that the state was not ravaged by flaming disaster again this year—as it has been every six years since 1933, except for 1957.

For this year forestlands were ripe for disaster.

Millions of board feet of standing timber were toppled in the savage Columbus Day, 1962, storm which raked the Oregon coastal area, killed more than a score of persons, and did nearly $200 million in damage.

The "jinx" was born in 1933 in the first great "Tillamook burn." That fire exploded over a 407-square mile are—almost half the size of the state of Rhode Island.

Destroyed was 12 billion board feet of timber—more than enough to build a million five-room houses. It was one of the worst forest disasters ever recorded in the United States.

Six years later the same region was laid waste by a fire which ravaged more than 200,000 acres. Then in 1945 the area was hit again, this time by a 182,000 acre fire.

In 1951 a series of three major blazes took a 55,000-acre toll although the Tillamook area in Northwest Oregon was spared. The myth of the terrible "six year jinx" was firmly fixed. Foresters prepared for the jinx in 1957—but there were no major fires that year.

With Oregon's timberlands this year described by State Forester Dwight L. Phipps as "potentially the most dangerous in the recorded history of the state" because of storm blowdown, officials prepared for the worst.

There were massive education campaigns — newspaper stories television appeals, radio announcements.

Timber operators and forestry officials began mapping fire-fighting strategy early this spring.

They did everything but plead with the weatherman. He's the one who saved the day. Oregon's summer was not the kind a Chamber of Commerce would order. It was unusually cool, and wet.

New Large Dam In India May Change Face Of Land

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The highest dam in Asia has gone into operation 150 miles north of New Delhi as part of a mammoth river valley program which could change the face of northwest India.

The 740-foot high Bhakra Dam was dedicated by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru as the keystone of an irrigation and power project which the Indian government describes as the biggest in Asia.

The dam alone cost India $150 million. Canals, transmission lines and another dam called the Nangal, brought the total cost of the project to roughly $350 million.

Although India is the world's biggest recipient of foreign aid, none was used for construction of Bhakra - Nangal. The project originally was conceived in 1948. When it ran into congressional opposition in the United States, the Indians decided to build their biggest river valley project with their own resources.

Plenty of American talent went into the dam, however. Its guiding engineering genius was a veteran California dam builder named M. Harvey Slocum who died in 1961. Slocum and 40 other American engineers were hired directly by the Indian government. Slocum's widow receives a pension from the Indian government.

The Bhakra - Nangal project has succeeded in its first aim, which was to tame the annual floods of the Sutlej River. The river's waters now are confined by the Bhakra Dam in a 55-mile-long lake which holds enough water to supply the needs of India's 450 million people for a full year.

The project has been supplying electricity since the first turbines began turning in the smaller, Nangal Dam, in 1955. Nangal now can generate 154,000 kilowatts of electricity, but it is dwarfed by Bhakra's newly finished power house, the largest in India, which produces 450,000 kilowatts from five generators.

When all the finishing touches are added to the project, Bhakra-Nanal will produce 800,000 kilowatts, bring electricity to 5,000 villages and turn the wheels of a host of new, small industries.

The water behind the dam is being distributed to 3.6 million acres of farmland, along 3,000 miles of freshly dug canals. Eventually the water will nourish 6.7 million acres of semi-desert, northwest India. Indian farm experts preduct an annual, new production of 1,100,000 tons of grain, 800,000 bales of cotton and 500,000 tons of sugar cane.

The Bhakra dam itself is 740 feet high and a third of a mile wide. To finish the job, engiish the job, engineers had to build one of the world's most modern concrete factories, install the longest conveyor belt system in Asia and dig out 7.4 million cubic yards of earth and rock.

Architect Wright's Widow Keeps His School Going

By MARY ANN REESE

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI)—The widow of the architectural great, Frank Lloyd Wright, calls marriage "one of the most difficult tests of character" and the secret to its success simply love.

"Few people have the capacity to really love anymore," said Mrs. Wright, who for 35 years was married to Wright.

"It's so easy to run away from conflicts and problems everyone must face in life and love. . ."

Mrs. Wright sees any marriage as "great" and commented that marriage "is one of the most difficult tests of character. You learn to stand in marriage. It measures how much of yourself you can share without demanding in return. You must advicate yourself to the man you love."

Olgivanna Lloyd Wright, seated in a chair designed and made by her husband and in the desert home both created in the 1930's, spoke softly and thoughtfully about her past with Wright, and why their relationship was so lasting. She had been married previously to a Russian, whom she met while studying in his country. And Mr. Wright had been married twice before he met Olgivanna.

"You must strive to make your life with him beautiful under any circumstances. Perhaps one suffers at times, because a great man — any man — is difficult, but marriage is always great," she said.

"We used to take walks every evening in the desert. I'd always go with him, even if I felt too tired for a walk. We would talk about ideas and about nature.

"When we would return, we'd always feel refreshed, and closer together. And we tried never to talk about the trite. Even before breakfast we would begin discussing something interesting and stimulating."

Mrs. Wright compared life to a hurricane. "To survive you must fall in with the accelerated tempo of life," she said. "You have little choice. Resist and you will be destroyed. Give in to the winds and you likely will be destroyed also."

However, armed with faith in God, in immortality of the soul, and in an eventual evolution towards perfection, Mrs. Wright has her own answer to jet-age problems.

"Every day you must ask yourself what you really want, and you must strive for that. You must start asking when you're about 14, and you never stop asking. People get old when they stop asking.

"Mr. Wright never stopped questioning. And he seemed to get younger and have more fertile ideas until he died."

He was 90 when he died.

Here, she is surrounded by the architectural students and staff of the school, founded 30 years ago. It has continued after Wright's death in 1959, under the guidance of Mrs. Wright, and architects who studied with her husband.

She is the president of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation, and is the axis about which the architectural school turns.

In addition to her work at Taliesin, Mrs. Wright has written and published four books, and is currently working on her autobiography. She is a prolific composer of music.

No matter how full each day is, Mrs. Wright finds time, even if only 10 minutes, for what she calls "brain nourishment." She reads from her favorite authors, including Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry Thoreau, Walt Whitman, the Chinese philosopher Lao-Tse, who was a contemporary of Confucius "but not as earthy" as the latter, and tte New Testament.

The oldest army in the world is the Vatican Swiss Guard with a regular foundation dating back to Jan. 21, 1506. Its origins, however, extended back before 1400 A.D.

Father Of Jeep In Dispute 20 Years

By JACK VANDENBERG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most people will agree that Edward Teller is the father of the H-bomb, Adm. Hyman Rickover is father of the nuclear submarine and George Washington was the father of this country.

But any attempt to name the father of the jeep, sometimes called America's secret weapon of World War II, is apt to lead to an argument.

The paternity of the jeep has been in dispute for about 20 years. There seems little hope the controversy ever will be resolved conclusively.

But one of the strongest and most documented claims to this disputed honor is that of Charles H. Payne, a free lance consulting engineer who was trying to sell ideas to the military in 1939.

Although no one ever has been officially recognized as the "father of the jeep," Payne has received official recognition of the role he played in development of the powerful little vehicle.

In 1947, Payne was awarded the President's "Certificate of Merit" for "outstanding services from 1939 to 1941 in connection with the development and initial production of the ¼ ton truck, now popularly known as the Jeep."

This citation is as close as any individual ever has come to receiving official recognition for concieving the jeep.

The citation was based on letters from some respected military leaders such as Gen. George C. Marshall, Gen. John E. Herr, Gen. Walter Bedell Smith and Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, all of whom played roles in development of the jeep.

Despite this imposing array of evidence in favor of Payne, others contest his right to be called father of the Jeep.

The major dispute seems to revolve around the question of what constitutes parentage in the case of a piece of machinery.

Most persons familiar with the early history of the Jeep agree the original idea for the vehicle was largely, if not entirely, Payne's.

Still there are some who claim that Karl Probst really deserves the title of father of the Jeep.

Probst was head of an independent engineering firm in Detroit in 1940 when he was hired by the American Bantam Car Co. of Butler, Pa., to prepare a design within the specifications which had been submitted to Bantam.

In this capacity, Probst actually designed the parts of the first jeep so that it would fit together within the specified limitations.

The idea for the Jeep — its inception, its overall characteristics, its size, weight, carrying capacity, power and other such factors — already had been spelled out for Probst.

It was this phase of bringing the jeep to life — including the first sketches, blueprints and so forth — that is credited to Payne.

Perhaps the best opportunity to legally establish the parentage of the Jeep came in 1943 when the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) issued a complaint against Willys-Overland for claiming the robust little youngster as its own.

But, after five years of testimony and arguments, the FTC left the matter up in the air.

"It is evident from the facts herein set forth that the Jeep was not the product of any one manufacturer, either alone or in cooperation with the Army," the FTC said in its final decision in 1948.

And that is where the matter stands today.

Actress To Wed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sue Lyon, the teen-age nymphet of "Lolita," announced Wednesday she will marry actor Hampton Fancher III Dec. 22 at the home of a friend.

The announcement was made by a representative who said the 17-year-old actress broke the news on location in Puerta Vallarta, Mexico, where she is co-starring with Richard Burton in "Night of the Iguana."

To See Johnson

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson will fly to Washington Jan. 22 for day-long informal talks with President Johnson, it was announced Wednesday.

New Products

For toddlers only: A new car seat upholstered in soft vinyl foam. The sleekly styled bucket-seat weighs five pounds and comes with a padded adjustable retaining bar to secure baby comfortably for short journeys and extended trips. (Union Carbide Corp., 270 Park Ave., New York, N.Y.)

The busy housewife need only spray on a new aerosol oven cleaner, relax for a half hour and then rinse off the oven deposits with warm water. This latest non-flammable cleaner is for use on both porcelain and chrome-lined ovens. (Fre' Wa' Enterprises, Inc., Dearborn, Mich.)

For the whole family: A home "intercom" with up to seven stations linking to each other and, if desired, "talk back" speakers at front door or in nursery. Set can also be adapted to control cooling or sprinkler systems. (Tele-Norm Co., Woodside, N.Y.)

Youngsters might drink to the very last drop with a mealtime show—right from the mug. The dog on this ceramic mug winks his eye — and "barks"—every time the mug is lifted. (Spencer Gifts, AJ-61 Spencer Bldg., Atlantic City, N.J.)

One hand on the supermarket cart and the other on a handy little "summing up" device might do wonders for the family budget. The hand-sized counter totals up your purchases as you shop. The device totals purchases up to $20. (Anthony Enterprises, 501 Post St., San Francisco, Calif.)

Air Force Plans Exercise On Christmas Eve

By EUGENE H. BLABEY

GRIFFISS AFB., N.Y. (UPI) — Just about the time that Santa is getting ready to begin his annual rounds, "Sleighbell 22" will be readied for takeoff at this Strategic Air Command (SAC) facility.

"Sleighbell 22" is a code name for a KC-135 Stratotanker, a giant craft that looks like a four-engine commercial jet airliner without windows.

For the families of Capt. James P. Magee, of Cincinnatti, Ohio, the pilot, and his three man crew, Christmas Eve, 1963, will be a time of separation.

The four men, members of the 416th SAC Bomber Wing, will spend six hours on a lonely flight across New York and New England to a rendezvous point 1000 miles out over the North Atlantic.

There, some 35,000 feet above the frigid waters, "Sleighbell 22" will transfer her load of 100,000 pounds of fuel to a B-52 jet bomber from a SAC base in Europe.

Both planes are part of SAC's Air Alert, a force of intercontinental bombers and support craft, always airborne and ready to strike, even if their home bases should be destroyed in an enemy nuclear attack.

Capt. Magee's KC-135 and sister craft, on similar Christmas Eve missions throughout the world, maintain the global capability of the Air Alert bombers through the tricky rite of in-flight jet-to-jet refueling.

Since 1953, an aerial hook-up between a bomber and a tanker has been completed on an average of one every 15 minutes, day in and day out.

Flying at 450 miles an hour, "Sleighbell 22" and the slightly other until the nose of the bomber is almost touching the tail of the tanker. The pilots must match their airspeed exactly.

"We'll only be about 47 feet apart, and that isn't much when you're going over 450 miles an hour," says Capt. Magee, a veteran of 10 years of tanker flying.

Airman 1-C Raymond E. Carthage, of San Gabriel, Cal., boom operator, performs his duties while lying flat on his stomach in a tiny well under the tail of the 135-foot Stratotanker.

When the Christmas mission is completed and greetings exchanged with the other crew, Capt. Magee and his men will be able to return across the darkened communities of the Northeastern United States to their own families here.

On any other night, this flight would be fairly uneventful. But on Christmas Eve, the routine is broken as periodic accounts of another strange flight come crackling in over the radio.

In somber, official tones, arctic radar stations of the Ground Control Intercept network, part of the Air Defense Command, report spotting an "eight-engined" Unidentified Flying Object, its air speed, altitude, estimated time of arrival in the United States and the fact that jolly sounds of laugher accompany the flight.

"We haven't spotted him yet," Capt. Magee says with a smile, "but I've told Capt. Boepple (Capt. Wayne T. Boepple, of Mohawk, N.Y., navigator) don't want him to get Rudolph's red nose confused with one of the stars he'll be sighting."

Fast Ride

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President John's Secret Service driver took the Chief Executive to work Wednesday at speeds up to 65 miles an hour.

Roaring through rush hour traffic in downtown Washington, the presidential limousine covered the seven mile run from Johnson's private home to the White House in 11 minutes.

Blind California Youth Traveled Across United States With Just His Dog

By JOAN SWEENEY

Although he is blind, the 19-year-old junior at the University of California at Berkeley manages to accomplish more than many who have their sight.

He recently made a 27-day bus tour of the United States, accompanied only by his guide dog, Archie. Not only did he travel alone, but he made all his own arrangements as he went along.

He qualifies as a concert pianist, has won medals for debating and public speaking, earns high grades, writes poetry and fiction, plays softball and bridge and bowls.

"I made up my mind that if someone said there was something a blind person couldn't do, I was determined to do it," Michael said. "I have never found anything I couldn't do sometimes like softball, but I've been able to do it."

He explained that the blind use a rubber ball for softball. The pitcher rolls in along the ground to the batter, and counselors at the bases use noise-makers to give a runner the proper direction.

Nor has Michael let his handicap dim his future ambitions. A journalism major, he plans to attend law school and hopes to serve in the Peace Corps.

He has a double reason for hoping to be accepted by the Corps:

"First of all, I want to help the blind in other countries where they have pretty bad conditions. Secondly, I can't go into the armed forces, and this would sort of be compensation for the fact that I can't."

As for his trip, Michael said: "I had never been east of Reno, Nevada, before but I had traveled around California, and I thought I could do it."

A cross - country trip alone seems fraught with difficulty for a blind person, but Michael said he had very few problems.

"I'm glad I took the trip," he said. "It helped generate more confidence in myself and to become more independent than before. It gave me more experience in meeting different people in strange situations."

During the trip, Michael climbed to the top of the 550-foot high Washington monument and back down again in 30 minutes. He was spurred on by a guard who expressed considerable skepticism in Michael's ability to do it.

Swimming in the Great Salt Lake and in Lake Michigan with Archie, attending a Broadway play, visiting a Greenwich Village coffee house for a late night talk session, touring the Ford plant and assembly line in Dearborn Mich., were among the highlights of his trip.

New Yorkers, often maligned as cold and hostile to strangers, have found a champion in Michael. He found them the most friendly people in the country. However, his sentiment didn't extend to the city itself. He thought it was too crowded and noisy.

He also gave Salt Lake City and Chicago residents high marks for their hospitality.

"They let me see what these things are like," he explained as he sat in the Los Angeles office of the Braille Institute of America. "You can tell me the Capitol is a big building with a dome on top, but I can't really picture it too well. But if I can feel the little replica then I can tell."

Michael has been blind since the age of five when a can of lye in an incinerator blew up in his face. He suffered third degree burns from the waist up and for a time it was throught his left arm would have to be amputated.

He credits his independent ways to his mother and to his plastic surgeon, who advised her to make him do things for himself without her help. Although he thought it was difficult to watch him struggle, she forced herself to follow the doctor's advice.

However, it paid off, and now Michael manages his own apartment near the Berkeley campus with no difficulty. While still recuperating from his injries, he began using the facilities of the Braille Institute.

Michael's dream is to enter politics and to run for office.

What office? "As high as I can get," he replied.

If determination counts, it could be president.

Air Lift For Cattle

COPENHAGEN (AP)—A Danish company that specializes in flying cattle by air freight for stud purposes has organized more than 100 flights to many parts of the world Normally 50 animals are carried in a specially fitted transport plane. Fare from Copenhagen to Beirut, for example, is about $160 a head. In the U. S., there is no import duty on animals brought to this country for breeding purposes.

Mac Waits For Bus

LONDON (UPI)—The Daily Mail today published a large frontpage picture of former Premier Harold Macmillan waiting patiently in line for a bus yesterday in midtown London.

People around him obviously did not recognize the man who had led their country until less than two months ago. Macmillan has been working at the offices of his family publishing firm.

Blind California Youth Traveled Across United States With Just His Dog

By JOAN SWEENEY

Although he is blind, the 19-year-old junior at the University of California at Berkeley manages to accomplish more than many who have their sight.

He recently made a 27-day bus tour of the United States, accompanied only by his guide dog, Archie. Not only did he travel alone, but he made all his own arrangements as he went along.

He qualifies as a concert pianist, has won medals for debating and public speaking, earns high grades, writes poetry and fiction, plays softball and bridge and bowls.

"I made up my mind that if someone said there was something a blind person couldn't do, I was determined to do it," Michael said. "I have never found anything I couldn't do sometimes like softball, but I've been able to do it."

He explained that the blind use a rubber ball for softball. The pitcher rolls in along the ground to the batter, and counselors at the bases use noise-makers to give a runner the proper direction.

Nor has Michael let his handicap dim his future ambitions. A journalism major, he plans to attend law school and hopes to serve in the Peace Corps.

He has a double reason for hoping to be accepted by the Corps:

"First of all, I want to help the blind in other countries where they have pretty bad conditions. Secondly, I can't go into the armed forces, and this would sort of be compensation for the fact that I can't."

As for his trip, Michael said: "I had never been east of Reno, Nevada, before but I had traveled around California, and I thought I could do it."

A cross - country trip alone seems fraught with difficulty for a blind person, but Michael said he had very few problems.

"I'm glad I took the trip," he said. "It helped generate more confidence in myself and to become more independent than before. It gave me more experience in meeting different people in strange situations."

During the trip, Michael climbed to the top of the 550-foot high Washington monument and back down again in 30 minutes. He was spurred on by a guard who expressed considerable skepticism in Michael's ability to do it.

Swimming in the Great Salt Lake and in Lake Michigan with Archie, attending a Broadway play, visiting a Greenwich Village coffee house for a late night talk session, touring the Ford plant and assembly line in Dearborn Mich., were among the highlights of his trip.

New Yorkers, often maligned as cold and hostile to strangers, have found a champion in Michael. He found them the most friendly people in the country. However, his sentiment didn't extend to the city itself. He thought it was too crowded and noisy.

He also gave Salt Lake City and Chicago residents high marks for their hospitality.

Michael brought back a large collection of scale model souveniers from the places he visited.

"They let me see what these things are like," he explained as he sat in the Los Angeles office of the Braille Institute of America. "You can tell me the Capitol is a big building with a dome on top, but I can't really picture it too well. But if I can feel the little replica then I can tell."

Michael has been blind since the age of five when a can of lye in an incinerator blew up in his face. He suffered third degree burns from the waist up and for a time it was thought his left arm would have to be amputated.

He credits his independent ways to his mother and to his plastic surgeon, who advised her to make him do things for himself without her help. Although she thought it was difficult to watch him struggle, she forced herself to follow the doctor's advice.

However, it paid off, and now Michael manages his own apartment near the Berkeley campus with no difficulty. While still recuperating from his injries, he began using the facilities of the Braille Institute.

Michael's dream is to enter politics and to run for office.

What office? "As high as I can get," he replied.

If determination counts, it could be president.

Air Lift For Cattle

COPENHAGEN (AP)—A Danish company that specializes in flying cattle by air freight for stud purposes has organized more than 100 flights to many parts of the world. Normally 50 animals are carried in a specially fitted transport plane. Fare from Copenhagen to Beirut, for example, is about $160 a head. In the U. S., there is no import duty on animals brought to this country for breeding purposes.

LONDON (UPI)—The Daily Mail today published a large frontpage picture of former Premier Harold Macmillan waiting patiently in line for a bus yesterday in midtown London.

People around him obviously did not recognize the man who had led their country until less than two months ago. Macmillan has been working at the offices of his family publishing firm.

Associated Charities Toy Display Is Open To Public

The Associated Charities has opened its toy room for public inspection in the ground floor room of the Commercial Bank Building, South Liberty Street.

Hundreds of toys of all descriptions are on display and distribution will begin next Tuesday, according to Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary.

The room will be open today, Saturday and Monday.

"We want the public to appreciate the time and effort which have gone into the collection, washing, repair and painting of these toys which will make many of Cumberland and the area's children happy on Christmas day," she said.

The display, which appears to be among the best ever for Associated Charities, is the result of cooperation by civic, church and other groups in the community, she said.

All work in getting the toys repaired and ready for distribution has been done by recipients of relief from Associated Charities.

The room for the display is being donated by the Goodfellow Realty Company, Miss Bonig said.

Murphy, whose property has been purchased in connection with the eastern approach of the Cumberland Thruway, wants to move the permit to the building at the corner of South Centre and Harrison streets where he had operated a restaurant for some time. The building is part of the service station operation of Mr. Murphy.

Residents of the neighborhood have signed a remonstrance against granting the transfer.

The second remonstrance was filed with the board by residents of the Narrows Park area against issuance of a Class A off sale beer permit to Leroy P. and Patricia Michael's for Leroy's Grocery at 147 National Highway.

Local Teacher Kills Deer On Way To School

A Cumberland man who teaches at the Hancock School killed a deer while on his way to class yesterday.

Robert E. Digman, who intended to go hunting after school hours, had his gun in the rear seat of his station wagon when he spotted a buck just off the highway in the Belle Grove section.

He stopped his car and unlimbered his rifle. His prize was a four-point, 92-pound buck. The deer was checked in at the Hoffman Inn on Sideling Hill Mountain just outside Hancock shortly before 9 a. m.

Park Ski Run Study Is Planned By Street Department

The Street Department has decided to study terrain and this season's snowfall in Constitution Park before deciding definitely a site for a ski run, Commissioner Lucile Roeder said yesterday.

The decision was made after consultations with George Hankins, an official of the Western Maryland Ski Association, and Donald Anderson, former manager of the Meadow Mountain ski area.

However, Mrs. Roeder said that the park slope used in the past by youngsters and some adults will be continued this year as conditions permit.

It has been learned, Mrs. Roeder said, that a suitable ski run will cost considerable money. In view of this fact, it is felt that the city should be certain it has the ideal location and conditions before installation.

During the winter, observations will be made in the park on where the most snow accumulates, which area retains snow the best and where the driest snow exists.

Mrs. Roeder said some sites would require considerable fill and removal of trees and the department does not want to remove trees.

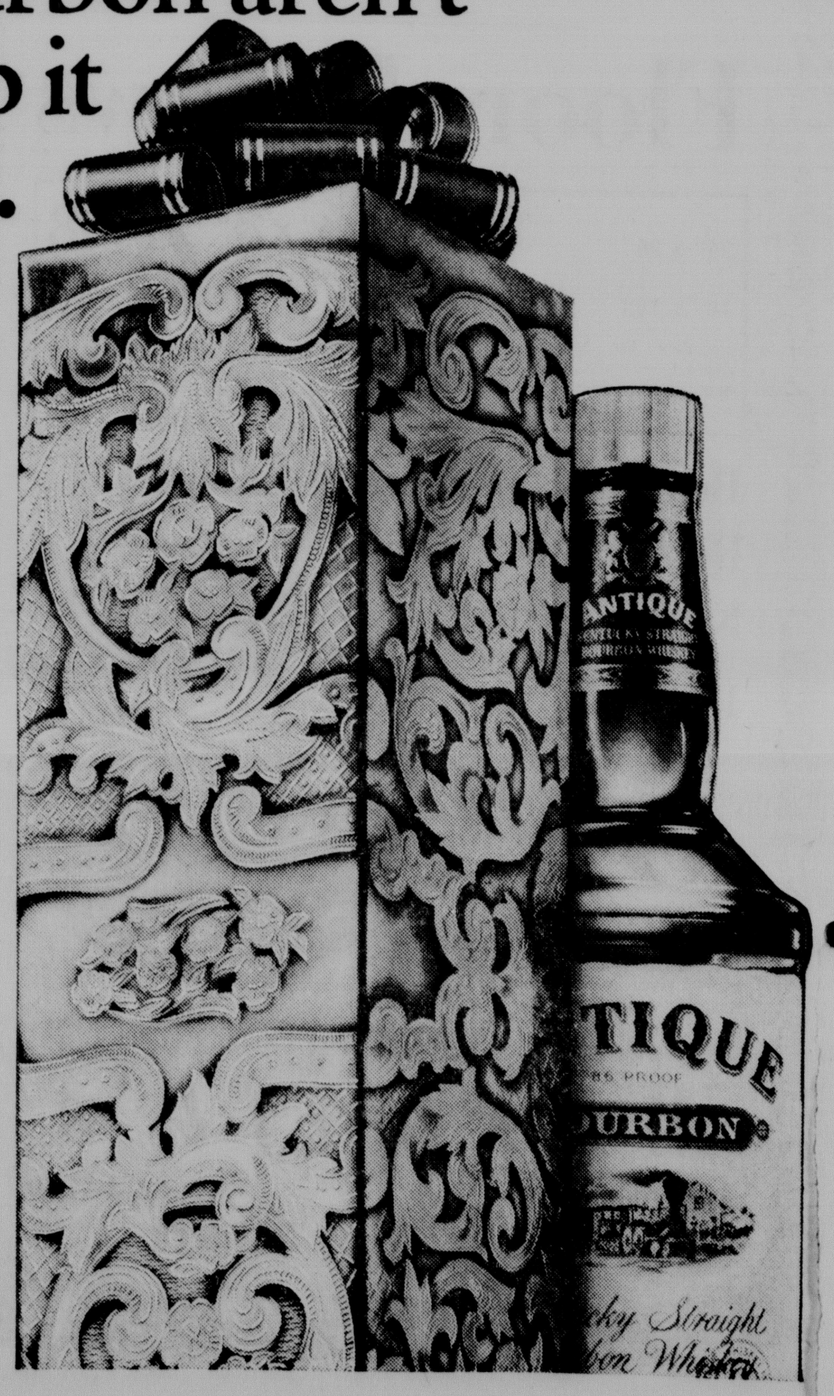
We hope that all you people who've switched to Antique Bourbon aren't going to keep it to yourselves.



Not so long ago, even the devoted few who drank Antique Bourbon would think twice about giving it.
Either they'd want to keep their discovery to themselves. Or they'd play it safe and give one of the better-known bourbons.
Well, the word's gotten around.
Our devoted few have become a devoted many.
So the people you give Antique Bourbon to may well be drinking it already.
And if they're not, you're right to give them a chance to try it.
Because Antique Bourbon has a character which no other whiskey we know of has these days.
We're willing to bet that once your friends try Antique and discover what a bourbon ought to taste like, they'll start buying it for themselves.
So there'll be a supply waiting whenever you visit.

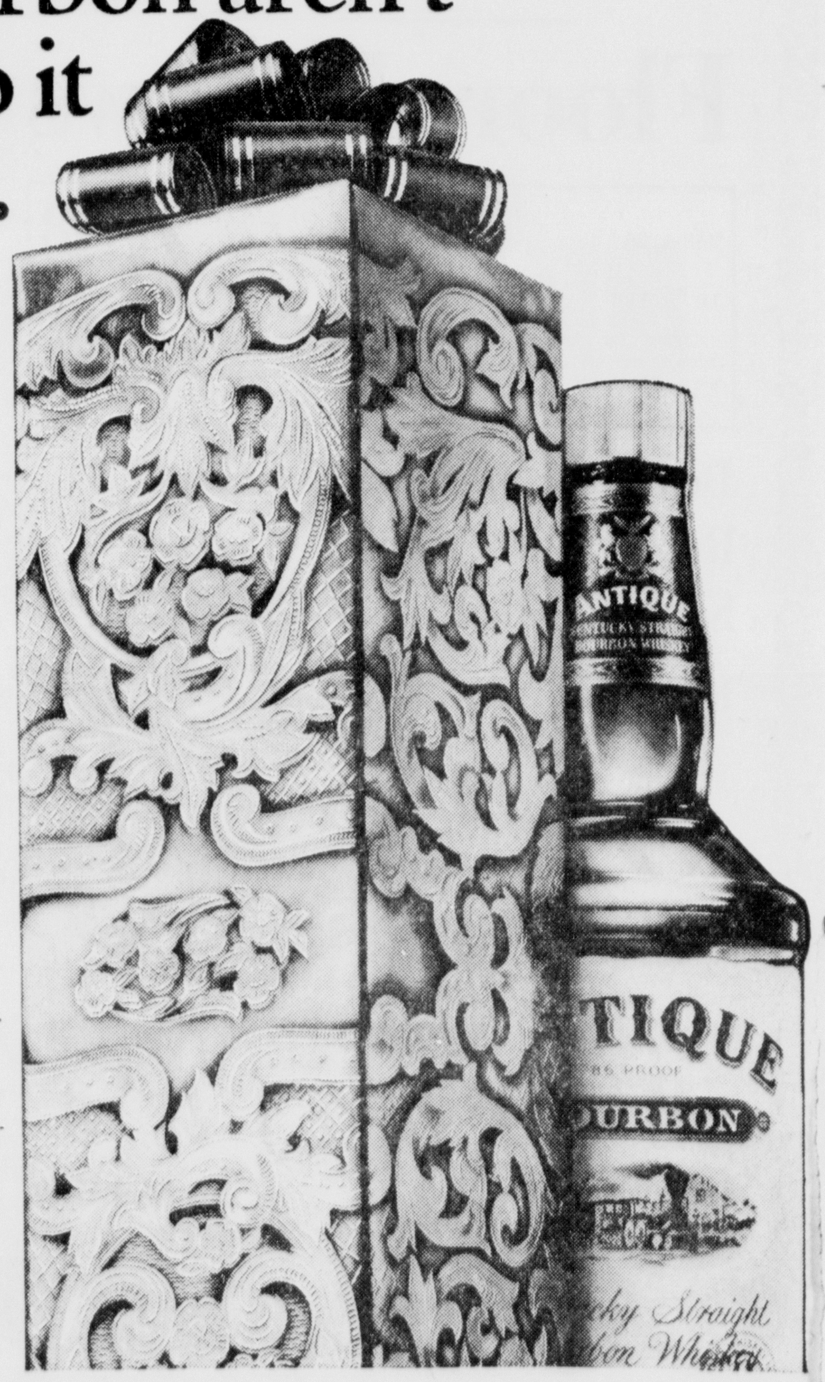
We hope that all you people who've switched to Antique Bourbon aren't going to keep it to yourselves.



Not so long ago, even the devoted few who drank Antique Bourbon would think twice about giving it.
Either they'd want to keep their discovery to themselves. Or they'd play it safe and give one of the better-known bourbons.
Well, the word's gotten around.
Our devoted few have become a devoted many.
So the people you give Antique Bourbon to may well be drinking it already.
And if they're not, you're right to give them a chance to try it.
Because Antique Bourbon has a character which no other whiskey we know of has these days.
We're willing to bet that once your friends try Antique and discover what a bourbon ought to taste like, they'll start buying it for themselves.
So there'll be a supply waiting whenever you visit.

Housewives Don't Need Statistics

The cost of living reached another record in October. A statistical drop in food prices of half of one per cent was more than offset by increases in costs of transportation, housing and clothing.

Consumer prices, particularly those for services, have been rising for years. So it was hardly necessary for the Labor Department, which prepares the monthly index, to predict that November would show a further rise in living costs, though food prices would remain at the October level.

In fact, a department spokesman estimated the Thanksgiving turkey plus all the trimmings cost the "average" family 30 cents less than the year before. But judging by the size of many Thanksgiving grocery bills, the "average" family was, of course, only a Labor Department statistic feasting on a statistical turkey.

October's rise, it was explained, was "strictly seasonal." The Labor Department insisted, as it has on similar occasions, that there's nothing inflationary about it. But housewives trying to hold the family budget in line don't need the consumer price index to tell them what has been happening to prices in recent years.

A New Breed Of Economist

The younger economics professors, so I am told, are ceasing to hold the spend-yourself-into-prosperity theories of the late John Maynard Keynes in any particular reverence. This, superficially considered, seems strange, for variants of Keynesian theory, as expounded by advisers from Harvard and the University of Minnesota, are still taken with enormous seriousness in Washington. But back in the universities new currents are stirring, and the reigning orthodoxy of the moment may be on its way out.

The "new breed" of economists has a much greater respect for old-fashioned free enterprise than the generation that grew up in the Nineteen Thirties. But it tends to a subtle approach to the business of reviving free competition in the Age of the Welfare State. It doesn't expect to get rid of a whole tissue of so-called "interventionist" economics, as dictated by federal law and federal bureaus, overnight. The idea, now, would seem to be that voluntary departures from welfarism may be the next step, with individuals "opting out" of welfare schemes if and when they wish, but with some sort of insurance being made mandatory for everybody.

When Senator Barry Goldwater, on his recent shopping tour for academic advisers, began looking for likely brain-trusters, he discovered the "new breed." He went to Harvard for Gottfried Haberler, who is a local dissident on a faculty that is heavily weighted with Keynesians. And he went to the University of Chicago, where the "Chicago school," disciples of the late Henry Simons and Frank H. Knight, has always held out against the Keynesian tide. The particular Chicagoan recommended to Goldwater is Dr. Milton Friedman, who has all sorts of ingenious ideas about restoring the fabric of free enterprise without causing violent upsets in a society that has become used to handouts and subsidies in every direction.

One of Dr. Friedman's devices would be to reduce tariffs not all at once but at a fixed rate over a comfortable period of years, say by one-tenth of the present level in each year of the coming decade. This would give protected industries plenty of time to get into new lines of endeavor or to write off antiquated machinery.

For our present system of social security, which "nationalizes" old age insurance under a costly federal set-up, Dr. Friedman would simply make it compulsory for all employed individuals to buy retirement annuities in markets of their own choice, substituting private insurance companies for a federal agency if they so desire. For an example of what Dr. Friedman is aiming at, there are the present state laws requiring compulsory purchase of automobile liability insurance.

These laws still permit the automobile owner to pick his own insurance agent. The conservative case for compelling people to take care of their old-age requirements is that improvident citizens tend to become public charges, and hence a drain on everybody.

Another Friedman proposal is to do away with all special programs, such as farm subsidies, minimum-wage laws, pro-union legislation, and so on. Instead of having a complicated tissue of grants and special legislation to alleviate poverty, Dr. Friedman would institute something which he calls a "negative income tax." Any person who did not earn enough money to pay a tax would receive a small subsidy, which would be graduated in a reverse direction, with people reaching a maximum of relief as their incomes approached zero. This would concentrate all relief under one agency, and, by driving the pressure groups out of Washington, it would simplify our politics.

A conservative Republican President with an economic adviser such as Dr. Friedman at his elbow would not loom as a hard-hearted "Neanderthal." Transitions to a predominantly voluntary society would be easy and smooth, with no particular group being asked to suffer for the sake of restoring freedom to the whole community.

Dr. Friedman has recently returned from a trip around the world. The hopeful communities, he says, are Greece, Israel, Formosa, Hongkong, and West Germany. He thinks it no accident that these communities all encourage a maximum of free enterprise. He is a good man for Goldwater to know.

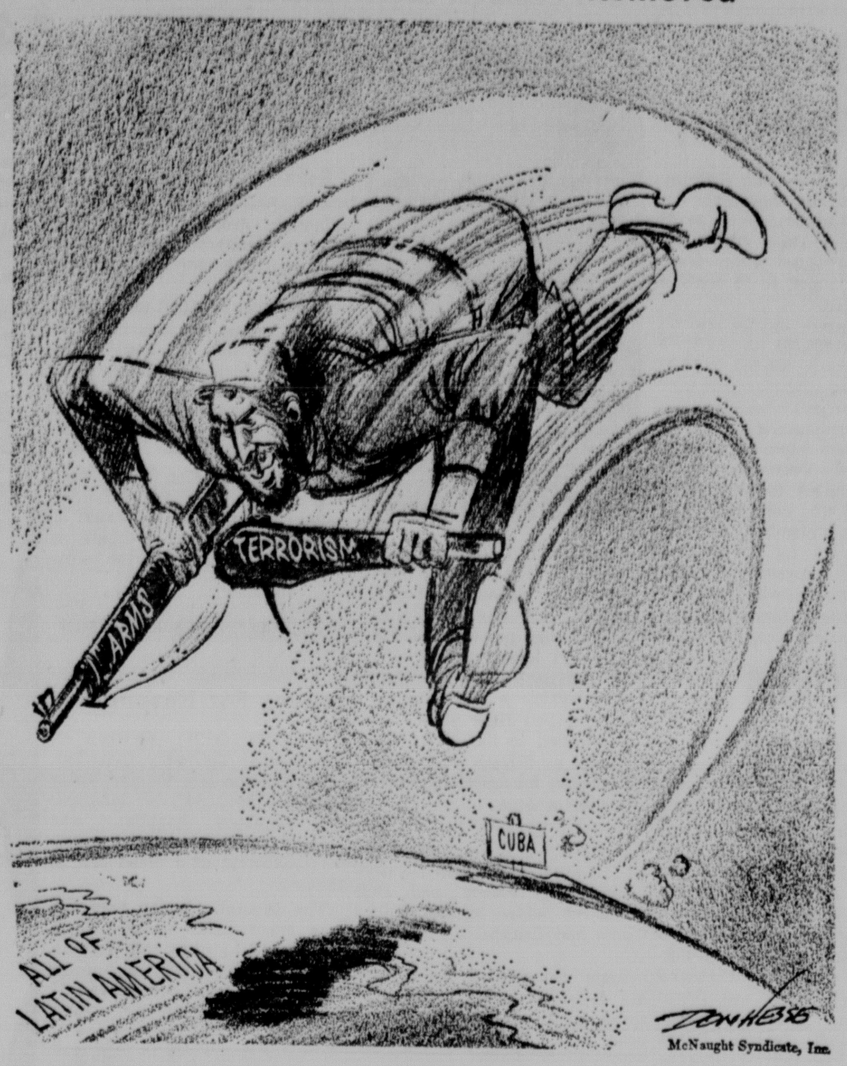
The Missile That Wasn't Removed



A Remarkable Effort To Maintain Continuity

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

Now that the muffled roll of funeral drums has died away at last, this city is beginning to resound with all the rather squalid noises that customarily are heard after every change of national administration.

The word is being put about, for instance, taht President Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara have an old feud, originating in past disagreements about the national effort to conquer outer space. This story has in fact been made up out of whole cloth. The new President in fact regards his Secretary of Defense as just about the most remarkable public servant to emerge in recent history.

In these cases, however, the facts hardly matter. The inventors of this and other stories of the same sort simply see an opportunity to sow suspicion. They fabricate the seeds from which suspicion may perhaps grow. They hope to profit if the seeds sprout.

The seed-scattering is purely speculative, in short, and the seeds will surely fall on barren ground if all those concerned bear themselves well and wisely. This is all that really matters in a time of painful transition like the present one. And it is hardly necessary to point out that what matters most of all is how the new President bears himself.

By now a good deal of evidence has accumulated on this vitally important point, and all of it is evidence on the good side of the ledger. Besides the qualities the new President revealed in his remarkable address to the joint session of Congress, he has shown a delicacy of touch and feeling which might not have been forecast, even by his warm admirers.

Consider, for instance, the problems President Johnson had to solve in order to put together his admirably conceived and ideally composed special commission to investigate President Kennedy's assassination.

To begin with, Chief Justice Earl Warren flatly refused to serve when the President's offer of the chairmanship of the commission was first transmitted by Solicitor General Archibald Cox and Deputy Attorney General Nicholas deB. Katzenbach.

The President then called the extremely reluctant Chief Justice to the White House. He patiently heard all the Warren arguments against members of the Supreme Court playing any role whatever except the role Constitutionally allotted to them.

He then made the kind of quiet appeal to the Chief Justice, solely based on duty to the nation, that no man of Warren's character could logically resist. And the Chief Justice, genuinely moved and touched, thereupon consented to undertake the task which he had intended obdurately to refuse.

The same process was gone through in the case of Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, who was not eager to serve under Chief Justice Warren — for obvious political reasons, though not for personal reasons. Both Russell and Warren no doubt expected a Presidential version of the famous "sweat-box treatment" for which Johnson was famous in his days as Majority Leader of the Senate. They got the exact opposite; and this was what conquered them.

Despite such hopeful signs as the foregoing, it is too early to make a sure prediction about the success or failure of President Johnson's central effort of these last days — the effort to maintain continuity. Much will depend, for instance, on the decision which Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy brings back from his much-needed days of rest and reflection in Palm Beach.

It is not too early, however, to make some quite significant points about this currently dominant problem. In this area too, in the first place, President Johnson has shown exceptional sureness of touch — although this cannot have been easy when dealing with men so lacerated as President Kennedy's former closest associates.

Before Attorney General Kennedy left for the South, the two had a long, frank talk. After that talk, there was as least no remaining room for any lingering doubt in the Attorney General's mind, that the new President most earnestly desired him to remain in office.

All the key figures in the White House — McGeorge Bundy, Theodore Sorensen, Kenneth O'Donnell, Lawrence O'Brien, and others as well — have all been called in by President Johnson for just the same sort of talk that he had with the Attorney General. All have been convinced of the new President's sincerity, and all have been impressed by the genuineness of his desire to carry on where his predecessor left off.

In his effort to maintain continuity, in sum, President Johnson has spared no pains and sounded no false notes. Thus the chances are very strong that he will succeed, although we must wait a while for certainty.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

FIREBRAND — When the White House, the Capitol and sundry other structures were burned by the British in 1814, the officer in command was Adm. Sir George Cockburn. In 1929, another Cockburn, Claud, a direct descendant, stepped off a train at Union Station as a cloud of smoke billowed from the Capitol dome. A paint accident had caused the blaze, but the superstitious shook their heads.

Recently, this fellow Claud, a British journalist and author, visited Washington again, and he's happy to report that he isn't responsible for that fire hex at all. As far as can be determined, no fires resulted.

However, another odd thing happened. The Black Watch Highland Regiment performed at the White House. Back in 1814, it was a Highland regiment that so enthusiastically sacked the capital under the leadership of that redoubtable admiral — Sir George Cockburn.

POSTAL PLUGS? — Government spending attracts a lot of attention from people around the nation. Some of them contribute thoughts on how to reverse the trend that is constantly adding to the national debt.

One writer to Rep. Charles S. Joelson, D-N. J., proposed a novel plan. To eliminate the national deficit, and the postal deficit, the Post Office Department should sell advertising space on postage stamps.

However, unfortunately for the budget-balancers, the idea struck Joelson the wrong way. "I rebel at replacing George Washington with Mr. Kleen and the Statue of Liberty with Miss Rheingold," said the congressman.

"I might also add that I would likewise frown upon substituting the bearded Smith Brothers for Abraham Lincoln on $5 bills."

Next suggestion, please.

Carbon Monoxide Is A Treacherous Poison

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Carbon monoxide poisoning is not confined to auto drivers and to men working in garages. Such mishaps occur in homes and apartments. Natural gas is predominantly methane and is free of carbon monoxide. It has largely replaced the older illuminating gas but poisoning still occurs when there is a combination of incomplete combustion and inadequate ventilation.

Poisoning takes place when faulty heaters, fueled with gas, coal, oil, or kerosene, are used in the home or trailer. Stoves, gas refrigerators, and air conditioning units must be kept in good repair. Picnic grills brought indoors and gasoline powered motors inside the home are hazardous.

Few gases are as treacherous as carbon monoxide because it is odorless and colorless. The victim usually suffers initially from headache, dizziness, and nausea. Muscular weakness follows and the effect is like an anesthetic but there is no anesthesiologist to control the amount inhaled.

The subject wanders aimlessly through the house as though drunk, not knowing which way to turn, but is too weak and confused to escape. Those who have come upon the occupants of a house where everyone has died from this cause speak of the evidences of disorientation. The surroundings often are completely disarranged and the bodies are sprawled around the room in bizarre positions.

Fresh air and absolute rest are the best remedies for mild poisoning. Hospital care is required when the individual is found unconscious, and artificial respiration, when breathing has stopped. Oxygen should be administered, preferably by trained personnel. Most police and fire departments have emergency squads who know how to use a positive pressure face mask respirator. The new pressure chamber with oxygen under two atmospheres of pressure is reported to be of value.

Remember that defective heating equipment plus inadequate ventilation is a lethal combination. This is the reason most casualties from carbon monoxide occur in the winter months.

VEIN REMOVAL

R. W. writes: I'm 70 years old and my doctor has suggested that I have my troublesome varicose veins stripped. At my age, may I expect a complete cure from this operation?

REPLY

Yes. When a vein is removed, it cannot return. In addition, at your age, there is a good possibility that other veins will not become varicosed.

PROLONGED HANGOVER

F. S. writes: I gave up alcohol three months ago and am still nervous and fearful. Is this natural?

REPLY

Yes, depending upon your emotional maturity and, to a lesser extent, upon your previous liquor intake. You must keep in mind that one sip and you will be a drinker again.

FEET FIRST?

L. B. writes: Why do psychiatrists look at a patient's feet before making a diagnosis?

REPLY

Examination of the feet is included in a thorough checkup. This is not done to determine whether they are clean enough for the couch.

BALLS OF HAIR

R. C. writes: What is the danger to the stomach if a child continues to pull out strands of hair and eat them?

REPLY

Hairballs (trichobezoars) develop occasionally and surgical removal is necessary when they obstruct the stomach.

TOMORROW: Fractured hip.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Goody Ace was present in a beauty parlor in Beverly hills when a very pretty girl refused to allow the operator to restore a blonde glow to her naturally dark hair. "Your hair really needs touching up," insisted the operator, "and I assure you we can do it every bit as well as they do it back East." "Impossible," sighed the pretty girl. "I may be here in Beverly Hills, but my roots are in New York."

An overnight star, in New York for personal appearance, and staying at the Waldorf, received a call from the president of a big insurance company. "We want you to be toastmaster at our big banquet Friday night. It will be held at the Astor Hotel—just a few blocks from where you are now, so it will cause you a minimum of trouble. What will you charge?"

The overnight star, still remembering all too well how hard up he had been just a few short months before, answered, "Three thousand dollars — and CARFARE!"

Mrs. Hibbs sought her hostess to inquire, "What's become of that pretty waitress who was passing the cocktails?" "I'm sorry," apologized the hostess. "Were you looking for a drink?" "Thank you, no," said Mrs. Hibbs. "I was looking for my husband."

Teen-Age Chatter Will Replace Childish Patter At White House

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Though the chatter and patter of little children are sadly departing from the White House, there will soon be the new sounds of rapid-fire teen talk and the latest hit tunes.

For President Johnson's teen-age daughters, Lynda Bird and Lucy Baines, are moving in, with their record players, portable TV sets, stuffed dogs, cats, and donkeys, and Lucy's pet beagle puppies, "Him" and "Her."

Lucy, 16, has already supplied the White House switchboard with a long list of her friends, so she can maintain the telephone contacts so vital to teen-age communication.

Lynda, 19, will remain in a dormitory at the University of Texas at least until the end of this term. But a room will be awaiting her in the White House, complete with the personal bulletin board which she likes to keep cluttered with clippings and mementos.

Next summer, Lynda may have a White House wedding, though the date hasn't been set. She is engaged to Ensign Bernard Rosenbach, an Annapolis graduate, who lives in Comfort, Tex., 50 miles from the LBJ Ranch.

Both girls are as breathless and beguiling as the Kennedy children were frisky and frolicsome.

Lynda has her father's persuasiveness, her mother's gentleness. She is quick with a quip, but is never smart alecky. She loves to ride, swim, dance, bowl. Like most girls, she is pound-conscious.

Stern Father

Lucy is more pensive and thoughtful. She is sweetly tender, lavishes affection on people and pets. Though she is now limited to her two little beagles, she has owned ducks, chickens, even white mice. When a pet becomes sick, Lucy makes bedside visits to the animal hospital.

The President, who likes to play the stern father but has a hard time putting on a convincing performance, has said of his daughters: "Lynda is so smart that she'll always be able to take care of herself. Lucy is so appealing and feminine that there'll always be some man around to take care of her."

Both daughters cuddle and coddle the President in the time-tested manner of pretty girls who know how to handle their fathers. They also take their problems to him for adult discussion, even consult him about their boy friends.

It pleases him to be gruff and grumpy about such matters, but the First Lady confides that he is secretly flattered.

Both girls take an absorbing interest in their father's career. It is typical of them that Lucy was broken-hearted after he lost the Presidential nomination to John Kennedy in 1960, but Lynda took the defeat more philosophically.

In fact, she was off touring Disneyland later when her father was nominated for the Vice Presidency. She learned the news from a waitress at a soda fountain, but not in time to appear on television with the family.

Next day, she confessed to newsmen: "I was always Daddy's darling daughter. But I wasn't daddy's darling daughter last night!"

"We always know she is thinking of us," explains Lynda, who is thoughtful about writing and phoning her parents.

The new First Lady, in turn, has a habit of ending phone talks with her daughters with some tender remark like "You are loved," or "I have faith in you."

De-Privileged Children

No strangers to the White House, Lynda and Lucy were invited to affairs that Jacqueline Kennedy thought they would enjoy. The first invitation was to attend a Shakespeare reading for Sudan's head of state.

Lucy, worried that they must have been invited by mistake, scrawled a note to Mrs. Kennedy asking: "I love your invitation. I am very honored, but are you aware of our ages?"

Back came a letter from Mrs. Kennedy assuring Lucy: "I am very well aware of your ages, but I want you anyway."

For all the excitement and glamor of being celebrated children, the Johnson girls sometimes refer to themselves as "de-privileged children" because their father's eminence has forced them to live in the spotlight.

Now that they must have Secret Service bodyguards hovering over them, they are particularly ill at ease. The prospect of having the Secret Service tagging along as chaperons on dates is positively horrifying.

Before they became part of the First Family, the Secret Service kept a protective watch over them only on special occasions. At one such affair, Lynda recalls:

"Lucy had this boy friend who was trying to give her a senior ring. She had an awkward time with the Secret Service watching her every second." Commented Lynda: "It doesn't exactly breed romance, you know."

Lynda sees one possible advantage, however, to having a Secret Service agent sticking by her at the University of Texas. Would it be proper and legal, she wanted to know, to have him help her with homework?

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Hon. John B. Connally, Governor
State of Texas,
Parkland Memorial Hospital,
Dallas, Texas.

Dear Governor:

The nation is in a convulsion of grief. The spectre of sorrow and shame hangs over the land in a suffocating pall. There has been time, since November 22nd, to think rationally, but the people continue to think emotionally. It is as though we forgot to tell John Fitzgerald Kennedy, "You're a good man," and now it is too late.

In this century, two world wars have not stunned us with the impact of a solitary man caught in the cross-hairs of a rifle, and the vision of a young woman, veiled and stiff-kneed, walking behind a casket to the melancholy tattoo of muffled drums. Across the continent, millions of people who have never met either of them, ask forlornly: "What have we done? What..have..we..done?"

In grief, especially mass grief, there is always an element of frenzy, of vindictiveness, the fiery eyes and slavering lips of the lynch mob. Blame the Russians; blame Castro; blame Texas; blame the newspapers; blame Dallas; blame ——"me." There is a beating of breasts and a rending of garments. The pitiless truth is too simple to comprehend: he is gone, never to return, and he is gone because a young man was mentally sick and did not know it.

Killer? Sure. Assassin? Yes. Cowardly sneak? Beyond doubt. There are stronger, and shorter words to describe him. Where we failed was in not spotting him before he spotted our President. But we evened the score. We lynched the lyncher. Or have we? One and one do not always make two, and subtracting one Oswald from one Kennedy leads us back to zero.

Books — many of them — will be written about that November 22nd, Mr. Governor. I am already at work on one. Others may write better ones, but my thoughts are not on this. They are on the national convulsion of grief. They are on the idolatrous offerings we place on President Kennedy's bier — the renaming of streets and stadiums and squares and schools and capes and towns and the building of granite monuments.

You knew him. You know that John F. Kennedy was a doer. You know that he had little patience with those who waste time and energy. I knew him but slightly. I was the last writer to be with Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy and I spent the days October 21st to the 24th in the White House. I know — from conversations with the President — that the closest thing to his heart outside of matters of state and family, was mental retardation.

The melancholy love of his life was a sister who is mentally retarded. You must look into the face of the doer to see the helplessness; to appreciate the crushing weight of knowing that flesh of your flesh and blood of your blood is forever ill and you are powerless. He signed a bill — the first federal bill on mental retardation in the history of the republic — while I stood watching from a corner of the Cabinet Room.

He used many pens in writing "John F. Kennedy" and he gave them away as freely as he gave himself away. Later, he told me of his longtime personal interest in mental retardation. "Especially," he said, "in babies." Babies, Mr. Governor, who cannot think or feel, whose minds are in the limbo between the living and the dead. He seemed to desire, above all, to help the helpless.

If that is true, do we honor a martyr by renaming a street or a square? Are we absolved because we say a prayer, or observe a moment's silence? Have we squared the account so that we can look his children in the eye when they say: "Why doesn't he come home? He has never been away this long."

I'm the outsider. My suggestions deserve slight weight. But I would guess — from what he said — that the handsome young doer would be pleased if a mental retardation wing was built on a hospital in every city in the United States of America. Just a wing.

I would also guess that the great State of Texas, which is not to blame for not spotting the sniper — the state which was with Kennedy on November 22nd almost to a man — could do much worse than condemn the Text Book building from which the shots were fired, and build there a great research center for mental retardation. The doer would do it, if he could.

If there must be a statue, let it be on the hospital lawn facing the place where, for him, all the lights went out. Let it be as he looked at his last impromptu speech that morning, standing at a lectern, smiling happily, with the right arm aloft in warm greeting.

You were spared. There's a reason . . .

You're Telling Me!

On reading that the U.S.S. Texas, the decommissioned old battleship, was the first U. S. naval vessel to show talkie movies, Zadok Dumkopf wonders if that was the origin of the famous Navy phrase: "Now hear this! Now hear this!"

See where the Marquis of Queensberry, in a TV speech, has declared he thinks boxing as a sport has become "rather unsavory." This makes it at least semi-official, since the marquis' great-granddad wrote the rules of prize fighting.

Any person who did not earn enough money to pay a tax would receive a small subsidy, which would be graduated in a reverse direction, with people reaching a maximum of relief as their incomes approached zero. This would concentrate all relief under one agency, and, by driving the pressure groups out of Washington, it would simplify our politics.

A conservative Republican President with an economic adviser such as Dr. Friedman at his elbow would not loom as a hard-hearted "Neanderthal." Transitions to a predominantly voluntary society would be easy and smooth, with no particular group being asked to suffer for the sake of restoring freedom to the whole community.

Dr. Friedman has recently returned from a trip around the world. The hopeful communities, he says, are Greece, Israel, Formosa, Hongkong, and West Germany. He thinks it no accident that these communities all encourage a maximum of free enterprise. He is a good man for Goldwater to know.

The Missile That Wasn't Removed

A Remarkable Effort To Maintain Continuity

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

Now that the muffled roll of funeral drums has died away at last, this city is beginning to resound with all the rather squalid noises that customarily are heard after every change of national administration.

The word is being put about, for instance, taht President Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara have an old feud, originating in past disagreements about the national effort to conquer outer space. This story has in fact been made up out of whole cloth. The new President in fact regards his Secretary of Defense as just about the most remarkable public servant to emerge in recent history.

In these cases, however, the facts hardly matter. The inventors of this and other stories of the same sort simply see an opportunity to sow suspicion. They fabricate the seeds from which suspicion may perhaps grow. They hope to profit if the seeds sprout.

The seed-scattering is purely speculative, in short, and the seeds will surely fall on barren ground if all those concerned bear themselves well and wisely. This is all that really matters in a time of painful transition like the present one. And it is hardly necessary to point out that what matters most of all is how the new President bears himself.

By now a good deal of evidence has accumulated on this vitally important point, and all of it is evidence on the good side of the ledger. Besides the qualities the new President revealed in his remarkable address to the joint session of Congress, he has shown a delicacy of touch and feeling which might not have been forecast, even by his warm admirers.

To begin with, Chief Justice Earl Warren flatly refused to serve when the President's offer of the chairmanship of the commission was first transmitted by Solicitor General Archibald Cox and Deputy Attorney General Nicholas deB. Katzenbach.

The President then called the extremely reluctant Chief Justice to the White House. He patiently heard all the Warren arguments against members of the Supreme Court playing any role whatever except the role Constitutionally allotted to them.

He then made the kind of quiet appeal to the Chief Justice, solely based on duty to the nation, that no man of Warren's character could logically resist. And the Chief Justice, genuinely moved and touched, thereupon consented to undertake the task which he had intended obdurately to refuse.

The same process was gone through in the case of Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, who was not eager to serve under Chief Justice Warren — for obvious political reasons, though not for personal reasons. Both Russell and Warren no doubt expected a Presidential version of the famous "sweat-box treatment" for which Johnson was famous in his days as Majority Leader of the Senate. They got the exact opposite; and this was what conquered them.

Despite such hopeful signs as the foregoing, it is too early to make a sure prediction about the success or failure of President Johnson's central effort of these last days — the effort to maintain continuity. Much will depend, for instance, on the decision which Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy brings back from his much-needed days of rest and reflection in Palm Beach.

It is not too early, however, to make some quite significant points about this currently dominant problem. In this area too, in the first place, President Johnson has shown exceptional sureness of touch — although this cannot have been easy when dealing with men so lacerated as President Kennedy's former closest associates.

Before Attorney General Kennedy left for the South, the two had a long, frank talk. After that talk, there was as least no remaining room for any lingering doubt in the Attorney General's mind, that the new President most earnestly desired him to remain in office.

All the key figures in the White House — McGeorge Bundy, Theodore Sorensen, Kenneth O'Donnell, Lawrence O'Brien, and others as well — have all been called in by President Johnson for just the same sort of talk that he had with the Attorney General. All have been convinced of the new President's sincerity, and all have been impressed by the genuineness of his desire to carry on where his predecessor left off.

In his effort to maintain continuity, in sum, President Johnson has spared no pains and sounded no false notes. Thus the chances are very strong that he will succeed, although we must wait a while for certainty.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

FIREBRAND — When the White House, the Capitol and sundry other structures were burned by the British in 1814, the officer in command was Adm. Sir George Cockburn. In 1929, another Cockburn, Claud, a direct descendant, stepped off a train at Union Station as a cloud of smoke billowed from the Capitol dome. A paint accident had caused the blaze, but the superstitious shook their heads.

Recently, this fellow Claud, a British journalist and author, visited Washington again, and he's happy to report that he isn't responsible for that fire hex at all. As far as can be determined, no fires resulted.

However, another odd thing happened. The Black Watch Highland Regiment performed at the White House. Back in 1814, it was a Highland regiment that so enthusiastically sacked the capital under the leadership of that redoubtable admiral — Sir George Cockburn.

POSTAL PLUGS? — Government spending attracts a lot of attention from people around the nation. Some of them contribute thoughts on how to reverse the trend that is constantly adding to the national debt.

One writer to Rep. Charles S. Joelson, D-N. J., proposed a novel plan. To eliminate the national deficit, and the postal deficit, the Post Office Department should sell advertising space on postage stamps.

However, unfortunately for the budget-balancers, the idea struck Joelson the wrong way. "I rebel at replacing George Washington with Mr. Kleen and the Statue of Liberty with Miss Rheingold," said the congressman.

"I might also add that I would likewise frown upon substituting the bearded Smith Brothers for Abraham Lincoln on $5 bills."

Next suggestion, please.

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Carbon monoxide poisoning is not confined to auto drivers and to men working in garages. Such mishaps occur in homes and apartments. Natural gas is predominantly methane and is free of carbon monoxide. It has largely replaced the older illuminating gas but poisoning still occurs when there is a combination of incomplete combustion and inadequate ventilation.

Poisoning takes place when faulty heaters, fueled with gas, coal, oil, or kerosene, are used in the home or trailer. Stoves, gas refrigerators, and air conditioning units must be kept in good repair. Picnic grills brought indoors and gasoline powered motors inside the home are hazardous.

Few gases are as treacherous as carbon monoxide because it is odorless and colorless. The victim usually suffers initially from headache, dizziness, and nausea. Muscular weakness follows and the effect is like an anesthetic but there is no anesthesiologist to control the amount inhaled.

The subject wanders aimlessly through the house as though drunk, not knowing which way to turn, but is too weak and confused to escape. Those who have come upon the occupants of a house where everyone has died from this cause speak of the evidences of disorientation. The surroundings often are completely disarranged and the bodies are sprawled around the room in bizarre positions.

Fresh air and absolute rest are the best remedies for mild poisoning. Hospital care is required when the individual is found unconscious, and artificial respiration, when breathing has stopped. Oxygen should be administered, preferably by trained personnel. Most police and fire departments have emergency squads who know how to use a positive pressure face mask respirator. The new pressure chamber with oxygen under two atmospheres of pressure is reported to be of value.

Remember that defective heating equipment plus inadequate ventilation is a lethal combination. This is the reason most casualties from carbon monoxide occur in the winter months.

VEIN REMOVAL

R. W. writes: I'm 70 years old and my doctor has suggested that I have my troublesome varicose veins stripped. At my age, may I expect a complete cure from this operation?

REPLY

Yes. When a vein is removed, it cannot return. In addition, at your age, there is a good possibility that other veins will not become varicosed.

PROLONGED HANGOVER

F. S. writes: I gave up alcohol three months ago and am still nervous and fearful. Is this natural?

REPLY

Yes, depending upon your emotional maturity and, to a lesser extent, upon your previous liquor intake. You must keep in mind that one sip and you will be a drinker again.

FEET FIRST?

REPLY

Examination of the feet is included in a thorough checkup. This is not done to determine whether they are clean enough for the couch.

BALLS OF HAIR

R. C. writes: What is the danger to the stomach if a child continues to pull out strands of hair and eat them?

REPLY

TOMORROW: Fractured hip.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Goody Ace was present in a beauty parlor in Beverly hills when a very pretty girl refused to allow the operator to restore a blonde glow to her naturally dark hair. "Your hair really needs touching up," insisted the operator, "and I assure you we can do it every bit as well as they do it back East." "Impossible," sighed the pretty girl. "I may be here in Beverly Hills, but my roots are in New York."

An overnight star, in New York for personal appearance, and staying at the Waldorf, received a call from the president of a big insurance company. "We want you to be toastmaster at our big banquet Friday night. It will be held at the Astor Hotel—just a few blocks from where you are now, so it will cause you a minimum of trouble. What will you charge?"

The overnight star, still remembering all too well how hard up he had been just a few short months before, answered, "Three thousand dollars — and CARFARE!"

Mrs. Hibbs sought her hostess to inquire. "What's become of that pretty waitress who was passing the cocktails?" "I'm sorry," apologized the hostess. "Were you looking for a drink?" "Thank you, no," said Mrs. Hibbs. "I was looking for my husband."

Teen-Age Chatter Will Replace Childish Patter At White House

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Though the chatter and patter of little children are sadly departing from the White House, there will soon be the new sounds of rapid-fire teen talk and the latest hit tunes.

For President Johnson's teen-age daughters, Lynda Bird and Lucy Baines, are moving in, with their record players, portable TV sets, stuffed dogs, cats, and donkeys, and Lucy's pet beagle puppies, "Him" and "Her."

Lucy, 16, has already supplied the White House switchboard with a long list of her friends, so she can maintain the telephone contacts so vital to teen-age communication.

Lynda, 19, will remain in a dormitory at the University of Texas at least until the end of this term. But a room will be awaiting her in the White House, complete with the personal bulletin board which she likes to keep cluttered with clippings and mementos.

Next summer, Lynda may have a White House wedding, though the date hasn't been set. She is engaged to Ensign Bernard Rosenbach, an Annapolis graduate, who lives in Comfort, Tex., 50 miles from the LBJ Ranch.

Both girls are as breathless and beguiling as the Kennedy children were frisky and frolicsome.

Lynda has her father's persuasiveness, her mother's gentleness. She is quick with a quip, but is never smart alecky. She loves to ride, swim, dance, bowl. Like most girls, she is pound-conscious.

Stern Father

Lucy is more pensive and thoughtful. She is sweetly tender, lavishes affection on people and pets. Though she is now limited to her two little beagles, she has owned ducks, chickens, even white mice. When a pet becomes sick, Lucy makes bedside visits to the animal hospital.

The President, who likes to play the stern father but has a hard time putting on a convincing performance, has said of his daughters: "Lynda is so smart that she'll always be able to take care of herself. Lucy is so appealing and feminine that there'll always be some man around to take care of her."

Both daughters cuddle and coddle the President in the time-tested manner of pretty girls who know how to handle their fathers. They also take their problems to him for adult discussion, even consult him about their boy friends.

It pleases him to be gruff and grumpy about such matters, but the First Lady confides that he is secretly flattered.

Both girls take an absorbing interest in their father's career. It is typical of them that Lucy was broken-hearted after he lost the Presidential nomination to John Kennedy in 1960, but Lynda took the defeat more philosophically.

In fact, she was off touring Disneyland later when her father was nominated for the Vice Presidency. She learned the news from a waitress at a soda fountain, but not in time to appear on television with the family.

Next day, she confessed to newsmen: "I was always Daddy's darling daughter. But I wasn't daddy's darling daughter last night!"

"We always know she is thinking of us," explains Lynda, who is thoughtful about writing and phoning her parents.

The new First Lady, in turn, has a habit of ending phone talks with her daughters with some tender remark like "You are loved," or "I have faith in you."

De-Privileged Children

No strangers to the White House, Lynda and Lucy were invited to affairs that Jacqueline Kennedy thought they would enjoy. The first invitation was to attend a Shakespeare reading for Sudan's head of state.

Lucy, worried that they must have been invited by mistake, scrawled a note to Mrs. Kennedy asking: "I love your invitation. I am very honored, but are you aware of our ages?"

Back came a letter from Mrs. Kennedy assuring Lucy: "I am very well aware of your ages, but I want you anyway."

For all the excitement and glamor of being celebrated children, the Johnson girls sometimes refer to themselves as "deprivileged children" because their father's eminence has forced them to live in the spotlight.

Now that they must have Secret Service bodyguards hovering over them, they are particularly ill at ease. The prospect of having the Secret Service tagging along as chaperons on dates is positively horrifying.

Before they became part of the First Family, the Secret Service kept a protective watch over them only on special occasions. At one such affair, Lynda recalls:

"Lucy had this boy friend who was trying to give her a senior ring. She had an awkward time with the Secret Service watching her every second." Commented Lynda: "It doesn't exactly breed romance, you know."

Lynda sees one possible advantage, however, to having a Secret Service agent sticking by her at the University of Texas. Would it be proper and legal, she wanted to know, to have him help her with homework?

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Hon. John B. Connally, Governor
State of Texas,
Parkland Memorial Hospital,
Dallas, Texas.

Dear Governor:

The nation is in a convulsion of grief. The spectre of sorrow and shame hangs over the land in a suffocating pall. There has been time, since November 22nd, to think rationally, but the people continue to think emotionally. It is as though we forgot to tell John Fitzgerald Kennedy, "You're a good man," and now it is too late.

In this century, two world wars have not stunned us with the impact of a solitary man caught in the cross-hairs of a rifle, and the vision of a young woman, veiled and stiff-kneed, walking behind a casket to the melancholy tattoo of muffled drums. Across the continent, millions of people who have never met either of them, ask forlornly: "What have we done? What..have..we..done?"

In grief, especially mass grief, there is always an element of frenzy, of vindictiveness, the fiery eyes and slavering lips of the lynch mob. Blame the Russians; blame Castro; blame Texas; blame the newspapers; blame Dallas; blame ——"me." There is a beating of breasts and a rending of garments. The pitiless truth is too simple to comprehend: he is gone, never to return, and he is gone because a young man was mentally sick and did not know it.

Killer? Sure. Assassin? Yes. Cowardly sneak? Beyond doubt. There are stronger, and shorter words to describe him. Where we failed was in not spotting him before he spotted our President. But we evened the score. We lynched the lyncher. Or have we? One and one do not always make two, and subtracting one Oswald from one Kennedy leads us back to zero.

Books — many of them — will be written about that November 22nd, Mr. Governor. I am already at work on one. Others may write better ones, but my thoughts are not on this. They are on the national convulsion of grief. They are on the idolatrous offerings we place on President Kennedy's bier — the renaming of streets and stadiums and squares and schools and capes and towns and the building of granite monuments.

You knew him. You know that John F. Kennedy was a doer. You know that he had little patience with those who waste time and energy. I knew him but slightly. I was the last writer to be with Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy and I spent the days October 21st to the 24th in the White House. I know — from conversations with the President — that the closest thing to his heart outside of matters of state and family, was mental retardation.

The melancholy love of his life was a sister who is mentally retarded. You must look into the face of the doer to see the helplessness; to appreciate the crushing weight of knowing that flesh of your flesh and blood of your blood is forever ill and you are powerless. He signed a bill — the first federal bill on mental retardation in the history of the republic — while I stood watching from a corner of the Cabinet Room.

He used many pens in writing "John F. Kennedy" and he gave them away as freely as he gave himself away. Later, he told me of his longtime personal interest in mental retardation. "Especially," he said, "in babies." Babies, Mr. Governor, who cannot think or feel, whose minds are in the limbo between the living and the dead. He seemed to desire, above all, to help the helpless.

If that is true, do we honor a martyr by renaming a street or a square? Are we absolved because we say a prayer, or observe a moment's silence? Have we squared the account so that we can look his children in the eye when they say: "Why doesn't he come home? He has never been away this long."

I'm the outsider. My suggestions deserve slight weight. But I would guess — from what he said — that the handsome young doer would be pleased if a mental retardation wing was built on a hospital in every city in the United States of America. Just a wing.

I would also guess that the great State of Texas, which is not to blame for not spotting the sniper — the state which was with Kennedy on November 22nd almost to a man — could do much worse than condemn the Text Book building from which the shots were fired, and build there a great research center for mental retardation. The doer would do it, if he could.

If there must be a statue, let it be on the hospital lawn facing the place where, for him, all the lights went out. Let it be as he looked at his last impromptu speech that morning, standing at a lectern, smiling happily, with the right arm aloft in warm greeting.

You were spared. There's a reason . . .

Teacher Pay Research Report Is Given

Mineral County ranks 14th among West Virginia's 55 counties minimum pay scale for teachers with bachelor's degrees.

Beginning teachers with bachelor degrees in Mineral County receive $4,085 per year, an increase of $190 over last year, through salary schedule legislation passed in March of this year by the state legislature.

Mineral County's standing as compared to other counties was listed in a research report compiled and published by the West Virginia Education Association.

The report showed also that Mineral County ranks one rung lower, 15th, with its maximum salary for holders of bachelor's degrees at $4,826.

The county stands 15th, also, in minimum salaries for teachers with master's degrees, and 18th in maximum pay for the same degree. Mineral's master degree holders get $4,465 at the lowest step and $5,377 at the highest. Both figures represent an increase of $285 as granted by the state legislature.

Lewis and Marshall counties lead the state in salary gains since last year. Teachers in all 55 counties are getting more money, because of legislative action, but Lewis is paying all teachers an additional $380 and Marshall $285 above and beyond the state increase, through county pay hikes.

Hancock county is the highest-paying county, but the average salary there is estimated to be more than $600 below the national average, according to John McCoy, WVEA research director.

Next in line on the minimum bachelor degree scale is Morgan County, 24th ($3,825); followed by Hampshire County, ranking 28th ($3,800); Hardy County, 32nd ($3,730); Grant County, 36th ($3,610); Preston County, 38th ($3,563); Pendleton County, Randolph County, and Tucker County, all at the bottom with $3,325.

Standings with maximum bachelor's degree salaries are the same or lower than minimum pay standings, the report shows.

Recent Rain Helps Some

Recent rains helped the water supply slightly and water consumption dropped considerably below a comparable period for a year ago in the week ending Sunday.

Ray Nixon, water plant foreman at Lake Gordon, noted in his report that Lake Gordon is 3 feet 7 inches below the crest of the spillway compared to 4 feet a week ago; but that Lake Koon has remained the same, 20 feet below the crest.

Water consumption for the week ending Snuday was 68,550,000 gallons compared to 84,710,000 or a daily average of 9,792,857 as compared to 12,101,000 the same period last year.

Water conservation and repair of leaks have also aided the situation.

Leaves For Hospital

BERLIN (UPI)—Western officials said Thursday that Baldur von Schirach, former Hitler youth leader, will be hospitalized outside Spandau war crimes prison for several weeks for treatment of a blood clot in the leg.

$4,000 Damages Awarded

A jury in Washington County Circuit Court Monday afternoon awarded a Keyser woman $4,000 damages in her suit against Linda Douglas and Karl Douglas, her father, both of Bloomington.

The case was transferred to Hagerstown for trial at the request of the defendants. The suit was brought by Mrs. Mary F. Mongold for injuries suffered when a car owned by Douglas and driven by his daughter, backed into Mrs. Mongold's parked car at the Chat 'N Chew restaurant on McMullen Highway near McCoole on July 27, 1960.

Mrs. Mongold claimed injuries to her back when the impact threw her across the seat. She was represented by Horace P. Whitworth Jr., Westernport, and H. R. Athey, of Keyser. The defendants were represented by William H. Geppert and Charles Wagaman.

Associate Judge D. Kenneth Laughlin gave a directed verdict for the plaintiff but the jury set the amount of the award.

Mineral's master degree holders get $4,465 at the lowest step and $5,377 at the highest. Both figures represent an increase of $285 as granted by the state legislature.

Lewis and Marshall counties lead the state in salary gains since last year. Teachers in all 55 counties are getting more money, because of legislative action, but Lewis is paying all teachers an additional $380 and Marshall $285 above and beyond the state increase, through county pay hikes.

Hancock county is the highest-paying county, but the average salary there is estimated to be more than $600 below the national average, according to John McCoy, WVEA research director.

Next in line on the minimum bachelor degree scale is Morgan County, 24th ($3,825); followed by Hampshire County, ranking 28th ($3,800); Hardy County, 32nd ($3,730); Grant County, 36th ($3,610); Preston County, 38th ($3,563); Pendleton County, Randolph County, and Tucker County, all at the bottom with $3,325.

Standings with maximum bachelor's degree salaries are the same or lower than minimum pay standings, the report shows.

Recent Rain Helps Some

Recent rains helped the water supply slightly and water consumption dropped considerably below a comparable period for a year ago in the week ending Sunday.

Ray Nixon, water plant foreman at Lake Gordon, noted in his report that Lake Gordon is 3 feet 7 inches below the crest of the spillway compared to 4 feet a week ago; but that Lake Koon has remained the same, 20 feet below the crest.

Water consumption for the week ending Snuday was 68,550,000 gallons compared to 84,710,000 or a daily average of 9,792,857 as compared to 12,101,000 the same period last year.

The case was transferred to Hagerstown for trial at the request of the defendants. The suit was brought by Mrs. Mary F. Mongold for injuries suffered when a car owned by Douglas and driven by his daughter, backed into Mrs. Mongold's parked car at the Chat 'N Chew restaurant on McMullen Highway near McCoole on July 27, 1960.

Mrs. Mongold claimed injuries to her back when the impact threw her across the seat. She was represented by Horace P. Whitworth Jr., Westernport, and H. R. Athey, of Keyser. The defendants were represented by William H. Geppert and Charles Wagaman.

Associate Judge D. Kenneth Laughlin gave a directed verdict for the plaintiff but the jury set the amount of the award.

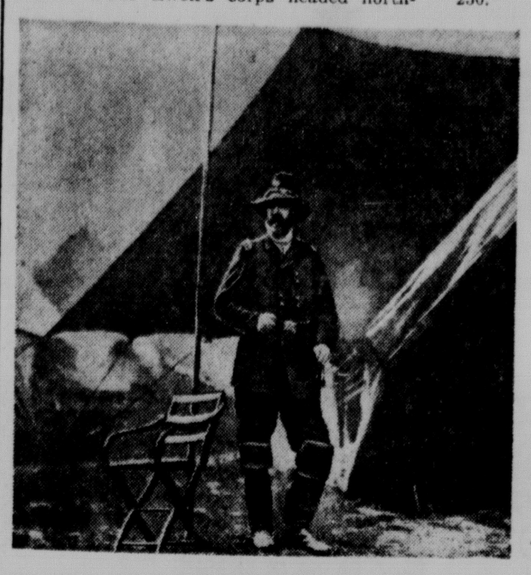
The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 315 President Lincoln sent a message to Gen. (Fighting Joe) Hooker in June 1863: "If the head of Lee's army is at Martinsburg and the tail of it is on the plank road between Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, the animal must be very slim somewhere. Could you not break him?"

Longstreet's and A. P. Hill's corps of Lee's Army of Northern Virginia had remained on the line of the Rappahannock to confuse Hooker while Ewell's corps headed northward in accordance with Lee's grand plan. When Ewell reached the Shenandoah Valley June 12, he split his forces. One wing struck Martinsburg.

Martinsburg cost the Union forces 200 casualties; only three Confederates were killed or wounded. The next day, when Ewell's other wing struck Federals at Winchester, the Confederates won a more decisive victory. The Union loss was 4,443 (including 3,358 captured); Ewell lost about 250.



That day, June 15, Lincoln called for states to raise 100,000 additional militia to resist the invasion of the North. He delayed another two weeks in removing Hooker as commander of the Army of Potomac.

The replacement was George Gordon Meade, who commanded a corps under Hooker. It is stated that in casting about for a successor to Hooker, Lincoln passed over the more qualified John F. Reynolds in favor of Meade, whose foreign birth (in Spain, of U. S. parents), disqualified him as a presidential candidate.

W. Va. Seeks $50 Million Space Agency Facility

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia leaders are scheduled to meet with National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials in Washington next Monday in an attempt to have a proposed $50 million facility located in the Mountain State.

Manager Frank G. Zohn of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce's industrial development department, said Gov. W. W. Barron, the state's congressional delegation and local industry representatives have endorsed the move and suggested possible locations in the Charleston and Huntington areas.

Zohn said West Virginia's chance of competing successfully with such electronics - oriented states as California and Massachusetts appeared "slim." However, he added that renewed emphasis on the strengthening of the economy of the Appalachian region might have a bearing on West Virginia being given greater consideration.

West Virginia University president Paul A. Miller and Marshall University president Stewart H. Smith have been asked to prepare supportive educational evidence to present to the NASA since the center would require proximity to university centers with strong post - graduate programs in engineering and physics.

Church Leaders Around World Welcome Pope's Decision To Visit Holy Land

By United Press International

The decision of Pope Paul VI o visit the Holy Land in Janu-ry was welcomed Wednesday y Catholic and other church eaders around the world.

U.S. Orthodox leaders saw the rip as a boom for the move-nent toward Christian unity.

Catholics hoped it would be he first of many journeys by the pontiff to areas of the world in which he has a special inter-est, including eventually the United States.

The United States has one of the world's largest Catholic pop-ulations, about 45 million. The American Catholic leaders hoped Pope Paul will be the first pontiff to pay a visit to the Western Hemisphere. He twice visited the United States before his election to the throne of St. Peter.

The Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of United resbyterian Church, said the journey to the Holy Land is "a fine symbolic act" which clear-ly indicates that the Pope in-tends to get out of Italy and visit other parts of the world.

Dr. Blake said he thought it was most appropriate that the Pope choose the birthplace of Chris-tianity for his first visit abroad.

Archbishop Iakovos of the Greek Orthodox Church said he has the feeling that the trip may be "a personal affair of His Holiness."

The Right Rev. James Pike, Episcopal bishop of California, noted that although many lead-ers of non-Roman Catholic com-munios have visited the Vatian in recent years, this wi'l be the first time that a Pope has "gone forth to meet the separated brethren away from his home grounds."

Bishop Pike said it might be called "an ecumenical dialogue in action" and that it showed that the Pope was "not just go-ing to stay at the Vatican and receive callers." He predicted that the Pope's trip will there-fore have a good effect on the whole Christian unity move-ment.

In London, the chairman of the Church of England's Council of Foreign Relations said all members of the church "will be delighted to know of the Pope's forthcoming visit to the Holy Land."

Grand Rabbi of France Jacob Kapapan said in Paris he "re-joiced at the news that the first voyage outside Italy by Pope Paul VI will be to the Holy Land."

In New York, Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Con-gregations, said "Speaking for myself, I rejoice that Pope Paul will personally visit the Holy Land; the cradle of the great religious of the world".

Mesopotamia is the name given to the area between the Euphrates and Tigris. Iraq is the Arab name for this territory.

Answers To Previous Puzzle

At home in trees or on the ground, chimpanzees forage for fruit, nuts and green shoots. At nightfall they build leafy nests high in the trees. Before turning in, they soothe one another with lullabys, communicating with cries and gestures.

In America, more than 90 per cent of new car production is distributed at home while Britain exports six out of every 10 cars produced.

To Commission Ships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department plans to commission three warships in widely - separated ceremonies Saturday, the anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

The vessels are the James Monroe, a Polaris missile submarine at Newport News, Va., the guided missile and anti-submarine escort ship Schofield, at Seattle, Wash.; and the guided missile frigate England, at Long Beach, Calif.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I will remember this day as long as I live. Today they came and took my beloved 19-year-old son to jail. As I sank into a chair, stunned and bewildered, my eyes fell on your column in today's paper.

The first letter was from a mother who signed herself "Frantic" She was writing about her 14-year-old daughter who was completely out of control. Well, the reason my son went to jail is because another mother let HER 14-year-old daughter run wild. This girl did not have to be home at any specific hour. She could go out with anyone, any age, anywhere.

When I learned my son was dating a 14-year-old girl I phoned her mother and begged her to keep this over-sexed child at home. I was told she had always been a problem, and that they could do nothing with her.

When the girl became pregnant my son was charged with carnal knowledge and found guilty.

So please, Ann, advise parents who can't control their daughters to send them to detention homes so the boys will be safe.

—HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: I would like to remind you and all mothers of sons that there will always be sex-pots around—girls who are not only willing, but aggressively seeking male attention.

If mothers raise their sons to respect their maleness and to respect womanhood, and if they are taught that the human body has a higher purpose and is not a plaything, there will be no need to worry about a son being dragged off to jail for immoral conduct.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A very good friend of mine is a great talker. She can report a trivial incident and can make it sound like the most earth-moving epic of all times. In the middle of her dramatic presentation she invariably becomes snagged on a minor detail. Sample: "And then on Tuesday—or was it Wednesday — no, I think it was Tuesday because Tuesday is the day Molly comes at 9 a. m. No it WAS Monday and not Tuesday. I remember clearly now—or was it Friday?" By then, of course I've lost interest in what she was saying.

Why do people do this? Don't they realize it doesn't matter an iota to the listener whether it was Monday, Tuesday or Sunday? Please shed a little light

—GNASHED TEETH

DEAR TEETH: Of course this sort of self-interruption ruins a story but it's strange that so many people are addicted to the habit. They are actually trying to settle the point to their own satisfaction. Unfortunately, it's the listener who suffers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A standing ovation for Bennie. He is the 14-year-old boy who has learned the most important lesson of life—self-discipline.

I saw one boy go from bad to worse, even with the best guidance. Why? Because he wallowed in self-pity. He was told he had a miserable childhood, stupid parents and was not taught the proper values. It never occurred to the boy that he could teach himself anything.

I know of another young person who had a far more turbulent life. He lived in orphanages, went through juvenile courts — even jail. This boy will soon be getting his high school diploma through the mails. Then he plans to go on to college. He holds a job and is making his way with no outside financial help.

I hope Bennie and other young people will continue to teach themselves the things they failed to learn from their parents. I concede, of course, that it's not so easy as blaming the world for our failures but it is immensely rewarding. —D.E.S.

DEAR D.E.S.: Thank you for reminding us that we we don't like what we are, we can do something about it. And we can start the "Better Me" program by accepting responsibility for ourselves.

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

Butler, owner of a fine singing voice, had gone from champ to contender in a short time.

Five years ago, Butler, a one time $60 per week parking lot attendant in Hollywood, cracked the ranks of first rate singers with such hits as "Them There Eyes," "Oh, Looka There Ain't She Pretty," and "Down Yonder." He was later reduced to recording such things as the "Rock Hudson Rock."

His future looked secure. He was making thousands of dollars from his records, television shows and nightclub appearances. He had anything he wanted, everything but the ability to resist the pitfalls that go with show business success.

In 1958 Butler was bankrupt. His debts totalled $18,000.

Where once he had worked for $3,750 a week as a singer, Butler now says he could only get jobs that paid $150 - 200 a week.

Why did he fail, Champ was asked.

"In my case I think it was lack of experience, sudden success and great amounts of money," he said. "Everybody tells you you're the greatest person on earth. Those who tell you the truth, you don't want to believe."

Butler had personal problems too, admitting, "from what I heard I was pretty hard to live with."

And there were horse races to support, he said, recalling an expensive period of his life.

"I was in Miami singing at night and going to the races in the daytime," he said. "I'd send to Hollywood for money. Finally the bank said I didn't have any left. In about a month I shot $25,000. I had to call Mitch Miller at Columbia Records in New York to OK an advance to get me out of the hotel."

Offers of that caliber stopped coming to Champ. It was only recently that he managed to get back on network television, this time in a segment of Art Linkletter's show. Champ also cut a new record album, "Heartaches by the Dozen," a title that should recall bits of his past.

"When I came to the realization that I had made the mistakes, I lost the bitterness that I had towards the business. I went to work studying. When people saw I was helping myself, those who wouldn't help me before called up offering me money and jobs.

"I feel I'm singing better than I ever did. I even studied opera. That helped me to project my voice. Now the clubs are getting better and so is the money."

Where Buffalo Don't Roam

PILOT POINT, Tex. (AP)—An old-time buffalo hunter would have done a double take had he attended a recent auction at the Pilot Point Livestock Exchange. Chances are he'd have exclaimed "Now I've seen everything" when a buffalo was put up for auction. The animals changed owners on a high bid of $40.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I will remember this day as long as I live. Today they came and took my beloved 19-year-old son to jail. As I sank into a chair, stunned and bewildered, my eyes fell on your column in today's paper.

The first letter was from a mother who signed herself "Frantic" She was writing about her 14 - year - old daughter who was completely out of control. Well, the reason my son went to jail is because another mother let HER 14 - year - old daughter run wild. This girl did not have to be home at any specific hour. She could go out with anyone, any age, anywhere.

When I learned my son was dating a 14-year-old girl I phoned her mother and begged her to keep this over-sexed child at home. I was told she had always been a problem, and that they could do nothing with her.

When the girl became pregnant my son was charged with carnal knowledge and found guilty.

—HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: I would like to remind you and all mothers of sons that there will always be sex-pots around—girls who are not only willing, but aggressively seeking male attention.

If mothers raise their sons to respect their maleness and to respect womanhood, and if they are taught that the human body has a higher purpose and is not a plaything, there will be no need to worry about a son being dragged off to jail for immoral conduct.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A very good friend of mine is a great talker. She can report a trivial incident and can make it sound like the most earth-moving epic of all times. In the middle of her dramatic presentation she invariably becomes snagged on a minor detail. Sample: "And then on Tuesday—or was it Wednesday — no, I think it was Tuesday because Tuesday is the day Molly comes at 9 a. m. No it WAS Monday and not Tuesday. I remember clearly now—or was it Friday?" By then, of course I've lost interest in what she was saying.

Why do people do this? Don't they realize it doesn't matter an iota to the listener whether it was Monday, Tuesday or Sunday? Please shed a little light

—GNASHED TEETH

DEAR TEETH: Of course this sort of self-interruption ruins a story but it's strange that so many people are addicted to the habit. They are actually trying to settle the point to their own satisfaction. Unfortunately, it's the listener who suffers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A standing ovation for Bennie. He is the 14-year-old boy who has learned the most important lesson of life—self-discipline.

I saw one boy go from bad to worse, even with the best guidance. Why? Because he wallowed in self-pity. He was told he had a miserable childhood, stupid parents and was not taught the proper values. It never occurred to the boy that he could teach himself anything.

I know of another young person who had a far more turbulent life. He lived in orphanages, went through juvenile courts — even jail. This boy will soon be getting his high school diploma through the mails. Then he plans to go on to college. He holds a job and is making his way with no outside financial help.

I hope Bennie and other young people will continue to teach themselves the things they failed to learn from their parents. I concede, of course, that it's not so easy as blaming the world for our failures but it is immensely rewarding. —D.E.S.

DEAR D.E.S.: Thank you for reminding us that we we don't like what we are, we can do something about it. And we can start the "Better Me" program by accepting responsibility for ourselves.

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

Butler, owner of a fine singing voice, had gone from champ to contender in a short time.

Five years ago, Butler, a one time $60 per week parking lot attendant in Hollywood, cracked the ranks of first rate singers with such hits as "Them There Eyes," "Oh, Looka There Ain't She Pretty," and "Down Yonder." He was later reduced to recording such things as the "Rock Hudson Rock."

His future looked secure. He was making thousands of dollars from his records, television shows and nightclub appearances. He had anything he wanted, everything but the ability to resist the pitfalls that go with show business success.

In 1958 Butler was bankrupt. His debts totalled $18,000.

Where once he had worked for $3,750 a week as a singer, Butler now says he could only get jobs that paid $150 - 200 a week.

Why did he fail, Champ was asked.

"In my case I think it was lack of experience, sudden success and great amounts of money," he said. "Everybody tells you you're the greatest person on earth. Those who tell you the truth, you don't want to believe."

Butler had personal problems too, admitting, "from what I heard I was pretty hard to live with."

And there were horse races to support, he said, recalling an expensive period of his life.

"I was in Miami singing at night and going to the races in the daytime," he said. "I'd send to Hollywood for money. Finally the bank said I didn't have any left. In about a month I shot $25,000. I had to call Mitch Miller at Columbia Records in New York to OK an advance to get me out of the hotel."

Offers of that caliber stopped coming to Champ. It was only recently that he managed to get back on network television, this time in a segment of Art Linkletter's show. Champ also cut a new record album, "Heartaches by the Dozen," a title that should recall bits of his past.

"The album is one of the big things that has happened to me," Champ said.

"When I came to the realization that I had made the mistakes, I lost the bitterness that I had towards the business. I went to work studying. When people saw I was helping myself, those who wouldn't help me before called up offering me money and jobs.

"I feel I'm singing better than I ever did. I even studied opera. That helped me to project my voice. Now the clubs are getting better and so is the money."

Grant County Planners Face Problem Of Economic Growth

PETERSBURG — A major decision and one of great impact to the future growth and development of Grant County was made at a recent meeting in the Court House.

Present for the session were the County Court, County Planning Commission, Mayor of Petersburg, John Larson, representing Potomac Edison, and a member of the consulting firm of Candeub and Cabot of Wheeling.

The meeting, presided over by Roswell Alt, chairman of the planning commission, was the outgrowth of months of work on the part of the local commission in conjunction with the State Planning Commission in an effort to develop an overall program of systematic planning for the future growth and development of Grant County.

In presenting the findings of the county commission to those present, Mr. Alt pointed out that due to the growth and changes that have taken place in Grant County, and in anticipation of future growth and development, it is believed that a program to meet the challenges of the future must be implemented without further delay.

Proposals Presented

In order for Grant County to become eligible for ARA matching funds, an economic development program was begun in 1961 and since that time, according to Mr. Alt, four proposals have been presented by the state, all of which have been rejected by the local planning commission because of the large expenditure that would be involved and due to their impracticality.

The Wheeling firm has since developed what appears to be a practical and workable program for Grant County, has received acceptance from the State Planning Commission, and at Tuesday's meeting, the County Court and the municipality of Petersburg agreed to furnish matching funds in order to get such program underway.

The total cost of the proposed program is $27,000, $9,300 of which must be raised at the county level.

It was pointed out by David P. VanMeter, president of the court, that in last year's budget $1,000 had been allocated by the county for this program. The Town of Petersburg for the past two years, it was noted by Mayor D. H. Trenton, has allocated $1,000 each year as its share in getting the program off the ground. This would leave a total of $6,300 to be raised by the county and the town to get the job done.

The program presented by the Wheeling firm will include a population study, analysis of buildings, utilities, schools and money available in terms of income and budgeting of such funds over a short and long-range period. It will also determine use of land in the future, exploration and planning of a transportation network, the logical areas for future expansion of industry. Also included in the study will be an analysis of the county's present school facilities, consideration of an expansion program for school's and determination of location of such schools, and a zoning ordinance which would control use of land in the county and within the municipality of Petersburg.

Growing Pains

Grant County has already complained of growing pains, and if the rate of growth and change continues there will be even more. And they may prove to be of such proportions that they will be difficult to cope with unless the right formula has been prescribed and the remedy is ready and waiting to be administered, according to one of the spokesman present at the meeting.

Industrial growth and expansion in Grant County has been outstanding for a county this size, according to Mr. Alt as he called attention to the VEPCO installation at Mt. Storm, as well as several other small industries that have already located here. This did not take into consideration prospective industry that is looking favorably upon Grant County as a place to locate. He further pointed out that Grant is already the envy of many other counties throughout the state in accomplishment in industrial procurement and emphasized the need of organized planning to further promote the area.

It was with a look not only at the present, but to the future, that representatives of the municipality and the County Court decided to enter into a contract for organized and systematic planning.

It is not known at this time when the work will get underway as a contract with the federal government must be executed in order that matching funds will be available.

Keyser Named As Site For Survey Center

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI) —The West Virginia University Center for Appalachian Studies and Development has announced the selection of six West Virginia cities as sites for Area Appalachian Centers.

WVU President Paul A. Miller said the centers will be established at Keyser, Weston, Beckley, Charleston, Parkersburg and Morgantown.

"The establishment of area centers at key locations in the state will enable WVU to focus knowledge directly upon the problems of the particular area in which each center is located," Miller said.

"Each center will follow a carefully planned process of analyzing facts and involving area residents in identifying and achieving goals," he said.

Miller said that next March 1 has been set as the target date for having the centers in operation. An area director will be in charge of the university program developed for each area, and of the county and area personnel associated with the area center.

The area directors will report to Dr. E. J. Nesius, vice president for the WVU Appalachian Center and director of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Nesius said the area centers will serve as a catalyst for the development of cultural, social and economic activities in each area. WVU's entire staff of specialists, scientists and library resources will be accessible to all communities and groups as a means of improving decision-making throughout the state.

Another important function of the centers will be to conduct workshops, conferences, clinics, cultural activities and short courses as a part of continuing education, job training or adult education.

Brethren Youth Providing Toys

KEYSER — The Keyhuit Area Church of the Brethren Youth will hold a potluck supper and Christmas party at Sunnyside Church of the Brethren Sunday, beginning at 2 p. m.

The afternoon will be spent wrapping repaired toys from last meeting and the new toys for distribution to needy children of the area for Christmas. Each group is reminded to bring wrapping paper, ribbon, scotch tape, boxes and scissors.

Each person is also asked to bring a dish of food to contribute to the potluck supper at 5 p. m. The Keyser CBYF will be in charge of devotions.

Area Churches of the Brethren included are Danville, Westernport, Keyser, Sunnyside, Knobley, White Pine, Kelly Chapel, Harness Run, Beaver Run and Terra Coat.

Class Reviews Church Ritual

KEYSER—Mrs. Bane's Sunday School Class met in the parlor of Grace Methodist Church. Hostesses were Mesdames Julia Oates, Nola Clark, Lena Purgitt, Hilda Worley, Naomi Boor and Miss Joyce Keplinger.

Mrs. Grace Wilmoth led the devotionals, and the program was in keeping with the Thanksgiving season. Miss Doris Prysock, president, introduced Rev. C. W. Scragg Jr. who spoke on the rituals of the church and then answered questions.

The Town of Petersburg for the past two years, it was noted by Mayor D. H. Trenton, has allocated $1,000 each year as its share in getting the program off the ground. This would leave a total of $6,300 to be raised by the county and the town to get the job done.

The program presented by the Wheeling firm will include a population study, analysis of buildings, utilities, schools and money available in terms of income and budgeting of such funds over a short and long-range period. It will also determine use of land in the future, exploration and planning of a transportation network, the logical areas for future expansion of industry. Also included in the study will be an analysis of the county's present school facilities, consideration of an expansion program for school's and determination of location of such schools, and a zoning ordinance which would control use of land in the county and within the municipality of Petersburg.

Growing Pains

Grant County has already complained of growing pains, and if the rate of growth and change continues there will be even more. And they may prove to be of such proportions that they will be difficult to cope with unless the right formula has been prescribed and the remedy is ready and waiting to be administered, according to one of the spokesman present at the meeting.

Industrial growth and expansion in Grant County has been outstanding for a county this size, according to Mr. Alt as he called attention to the VEPCO installation at Mt. Storm, as well as several other small industries that have already located here. This did not take into consideration prospective industry that is looking favorably upon Grant County as a place to locate. He further pointed out that Grant is already the envy of many other counties throughout the state in accomplishment in industrial procurement and emphasized the need of organized planning to further promote the area.

It was with a look not only at the present, but to the future, that representatives of the municipality and the County Court decided to enter into a contract for organized and systematic planning.

It is not known at this time when the work will get underway as a contract with the federal government must be executed in order that matching funds will be available.

Keyser Named As Site For Survey Center

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI) —The West Virginia University Center for Appalachian Studies and Development has announced the selection of six West Virginia cities as sites for Area Appalachian Centers.

WVU President Paul A. Miller said the centers will be established at Keyser, Weston, Beckley, Charleston, Parkersburg and Morgantown.

"The establishment of area centers at key locations in the state will enable WVU to focus knowledge directly upon the problems of the particular area in which each center is located," Miller said.

"Each center will follow a carefully planned process of analyzing facts and involving area residents in identifying and achieving goals," he said.

Miller said that next March 1 has been set as the target date for having the centers in operation. An area director will be in charge of the university program developed for each area, and of the county and area personnel associated with the area center.

Nesius said the area centers will serve as a catalyst for the development of cultural, social and economic activities in each area. WVU's entire staff of specialists, scientists and library resources will be accessible to all communities and groups as a means of improving decision-making throughout the state.

Another important function of the centers will be to conduct workshops, conferences, clinics, cultural activities and short courses as a part of continuing education, job training or adult education.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS —President Lyndon B. Johnson has made a forthright statement to the nation and the world respecting his intentions as Chief Executive.

In order to carry his unexpected burden of office, he has called for national unity and for legislative progress. I know that he will receive the united support of the American people as the leader of the United States.

I agree that it is time for action on a host of problems pending in the Congress and I am confident that he will receive the same responsible and constructive cooperation that places national above partisan welfare, which he himself gave while serving in the Congress.

President Johnson's powers of conciliation, his expression of respect for diversity of opinion, and his defenses toward the legislative branch, should all help to bridge the differences among his former colleagues which have contributed so largely to the Congressional stalemate.

ON THE DEATH OF A PRESIDENT—The murder of John Fitzgerald Kennedy was more than the trespass of one man against another. It was more than a crime against a wife and children. It was more even than a blow against all humanity.

It was an act which struck at the Constitution of the United States itself — that Constitution which established our great republic and provided the manner in which we choose our Chief Magistrates—and the manner in which from time to time we may replace them.

It was an act medieval in its horror. The assassination of a head of state is outlawed and outlived as a means of terminating power.

When I first heard the news of President Kennedy's assassination, I was attending the President's Appalachian Regional Conference in Hagerstown. The speaker on that occasion was to have been Under Secretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. As soon as I had been advised that President Kennedy had been shot I told Secretary Roosevelt the sad news. We made an announcement to the group gathered there for lunch and we both immediately felt that we should get back to a point where we could follow events and be of service in any way possible.

It was all too soon that the announcement was made—the President had died. This unbelievable fact—even more unbelievable because of the vitality and youth of the President—was hard for the country to absorb as a reality. Yet on the following day Mrs. Mathias and I were among those who were invited to the White House to pay our respects. We were met at the door by one of President Kennedy's naval aides and with slow ceremony escorted through the state rooms of the White House into the East Room where the coffin lay. In the very presence of death it was impossible not to accept the reality of death. What had been so unbelievable became, unfortunately and sadly, fully believable.

By the ceremonies which began at this point, our republic was not only expressing its sorrow at the passing of a great citizen, but it was expressing its profound shock and its indignation that this crime should have taken place—a crime which violates the organic and fundamental law of our nation.

Naturally, in these ceremonies the Congress had a part to play. As a Member of Congress, I attempted to carry out my function as the people of Maryland would wish me to do.

The next act in the sad drama occurred on the following day when the President's body was moved from the White House to the Capitol. On Sunday the entire Congress gathered solemnly in the Rotunda under the Great Dome. There in muted light, surrounded by the pictures of the great events which represent more than three centuries of American history, we waited for the unfolding of yet another chapter in the history of America. As we waited we could hear through the stone walls of the Capitol the drums and music of the funeral cortege approaching Capitol Hill. When the great bronze doors opened, the casket was brought in to rest upon the Lincoln catafalque. No human heart within that great hall was untouched and unmoved when Mrs. Kennedy, following the coffin of her husband and clasping the hands of her children, came forward to bid a farewell with dignity, with grace and with beauty.

On the following day the Congress again gathered in the Rotunda—accompanied by Members of the Cabinet, former Presidents, those who had taken great parts in the life of this nation. We gathered in complete silence. The eloquent men—the great orators of the Congress—all stood with heads bowed and centered in attention and emotion on the casket carrying the body of the 35th President of the United States. As the pallbearers bore the casket from the Rotunda every soul in that assemblage was wrenched by the human suffering of Mrs. Kennedy and of her children—that suffering which she subdued because the wife of a President is not even allowed the privilege of an expression of her grief—but must uphold the traditions of the office to which her husband had been called.

In the afternoon, the Congress went to Arlington National Cemetery to bid farewell to John F. Kennedy. I was struck by the fact that the Members of Congress gathered under an ancient oak tree, gnarled, almost leafless—standing on the hill below the home of George Washington Parke Custis, on the grass in that sunny afternoon as if they were gathering in a country churchyard. There was a simplicity about the fact that these Senators and Representatives — members of the greatest legislative body in the world—stood there, bareheaded for the most part, waiting for the body of the Chief Magistrate of this republic to be borne to its final resting place.

It was a simplicity reminiscent of the early Federal Period of our nation when the patriots—Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Madison, and all the rest lived their lives in simple grandeur.

From the hillside we saw the funeral cortege coming across Memorial Bridge. And what a procession—representing the peoples of the world—President de Gaulle, Prince Philip, Prime Minister Home, King Baudouin, Emperor Haile Selassie, all these—come to salute a great man and a great nation. The day seemed in tune with the event. As we stood by the grave at Arlington the sun moved over our heads and touched the top of the trees. The shadow lengthened and it was, indeed, a time for farewell.

What a scene of simplicity of a republic—what a scene of absolute and tremendous grandeur—there, not separated by position, rank or favor, the leaders of the nations gathered as one family to pay a last tribute. It was a moving testimonial to the office of the Presidency, to its 35th occupant and to the nation over which he presided.

I believe that the greatest monument that any President can ever have reared to his memory is that the Constitution passes intact from his hands to his successor's, and, I believe, the greatest act of memoriam any citizen can render is to resolve anew that the life and work and greatness of the republic shall continue.

Mt. Savage High Cagers To Make Debut At Ridgeley Tonight

Valley Opens Campaign At Keyser High

Piedmont To Visit Beall; Half Dozen PVC Games On Tap

Six Potomac Valley Conference games and nine other engagements appear on tonight's schedule as the 1963-64 basketball season gets going at full tilt tonight in the tri-state area.

What could be the No. 1 attraction is the game at Ridgeley between Mt. Savage High School, making its season debut, and Ridgeley High School's Blackhawks. Tom O'Connor's quint got off to a good start earlier in the week by whipping Romney, 73-63, and may give the Tribe an interesting tussle.

Ralph Wilson and Bobby Robertson who have tallied over 1,000 points each during three seasons at Mt. Savage are now seniors and they'll be the "players to watch" throughout the campaign. The Indians were 19-7 last season and went to the finals in the Maryland Class B tourney before bowing to Douglass High at College Park.

Valley Visits Keyser

Valley High's Black Knights are scheduled to kick off the lid tonight when they tackle Keyser High School's Golden Tornado at Keyser. The Knights wound up with 14-8 last season. "Eck" Miers' cagers fell before the Alumni in their debut Wednesday night.

Northern High's Huskies, making their bow under a new coach in the person of Matthew Stieringer, former Bayard High aide, host Leonard Ritchie's Bruce High Bulldogs, who are essaying a comeback after a 1-19 record last season.

Oldtown In Opener

Edgar "Barney" Tucker's Oldtown High floormen entertain Paw Paw High School's Pirates tonight. The Morgan countians rolled up a 72-56 win over Harpers Ferry Tuesday and look too good for Oldtown.

Francis Maleonskie's Bayard High quint, victorious over Tunnelton, 66-61, Wednesday, tests Beverley High School on the latter's court tonight.

Bedford High's Bisons play host to Coach "Stony" Jackson's Flintstone Aggies in the lid-lifter for both schools while John Keller's Hyndman Hornets will try to sting Meyersdale when the Pennsylvania quints tangle at Hyndman.

Beall Hosts Piedmont

Tonight's P.V.C. menu is topped by the Beall-Piedmont tilt at Frostburg where "Huck" Miers' Lions will be seeking win No. 2 after a 44-40 decision over Elk Garden. Beall will be playing its first game of the campaign.

Other action in the conference tonight finds Franklin at Moorefield, West Virginia School for the Deaf at Oakland Southern. Moorefield, West Virginia Deaf, Capon Bridge and the Highlanders of Southern will be opening their season.

Rounding out the heavy Friday card are games between Circleville and Monterey on the Virginians' court and the Alumni at Wardensville contest.

Navy Defeats Army, St. Louis Tops Terps In Soccer Playoffs

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Navy whipped Army 4-0 in a battle of unbeaten teams and defending champion St. Louis scored early and often in overwhelming Maryland 7-3 in the semifinals of the fifth annual National Collegiate Soccer Tournament Thursday.

In the opener, Carl Gentile of St. Louis scored four goals, the first after 31 seconds of play, as the Billikens gained the final round for the fifth straight year.

The Bills rolled to a 3-0 lead after 12 minutes and kept up a relentless attack on two Maryland goalies.

Senators Are Expected To Get Skowron

Bill Would Prefer Angels Or Chisox

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers are expected to announce the sale of first baseman Bill (Moose) Skowron to the Washington Senators within the next few days.

The former New York Yankee slugger, who had a poor season with the Dodgers but broke out of it with a bang in the World Series, was promised to the Senators last August, it was learned at the baseball convention on Thursday.

At the time the Dodgers purchased Marv Breeding, a utility infielder, from the Senators in exchange for pitcher Ed Roebuck.

Since no player trades are permitted after June 15 both the Breeding and Roebuck deals were announced as separate transactions with each player going to the other club for the $20,000 waiver price.

Asked for comment on the report, Buzzie Bavasi, general manager of the Dodgers, said:

"It's your story. I have no comment to make."

It is understood that Skowron doesn't want to go to Washington and so informed Bavasi. According to a reliable source, Bavasi sympathized with Skowron but told him "I gave my word. I've got to keep it."

It was also learned that Skowron heard that the Chicago White Sox and Los Angeles Angels made bids for him and wants to go to either city in preference to Washington. He likes Los Angeles and he calls Chicago "my home town."

Washington Group Purchases NFL Eagles For $5,505,500

Baltimore Keeltys Made Last Minute Bid Of $5,120,000

By RUSS GREEN
UPI Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia Eagles football team was sold Thursday for $5,505,500 to a group headed by Jerry Wolman, 36-year - old Washington building contractor.

The sale of the club is subject to approval by 12 of the other 13 franchise holders in the National Football League.

It represents a return of $60,500 to the shareholders who put in $3,000 per share in 1948. Originally there were 100 shares of stocks but nine have been retired by the club.

The Wolman bid was high among four considered by 51 stockholders who met for four hours before making their decision. A Baltimore group headed by James Keelty, former president of the Baltimore Orioles baseball team, and his brother, Joseph, made a last minute bid of $5,120,000.

A group from Cherry Hill, N.J., headed by Joseph McCrane, a son-in-law of race track owner Eugene Mori, put in a bid of $5,105,000 and a Philadelphia group headed by Jack Wolgin, banker and credit corporation official, bid $5,100,000.

Wolman, a native of Shenandoah, Pa., will control 51 per cent of the stock in compliance with the stiuplation by the NFL, and his associate, Earl Foreman, a Washington attorney, will control the remaining 49 per cent.

The closed - door meeting resembled an auction as original bids by the main investors were increased. The Wolman group originally presented a bid of $5,005,000 while the Wolgin original bid was $4,475,000.

But the sudden appearance of the Baltimore representatives with a $5,120,000 bid caused a flurry. The Wolgin group jumped to its $5,100,000 bid and then the successful Wolman bid was raised to the final purchase price.

Wolmand has stated previously that the team will remain in Philadelphia.

An associate of Wolman stated that he was a builder rather than a contractor, currently engaged in the construction of apartment projects in the Philadelphia area.

Harold Johnson And Henry Hank Clash Tonight

Philadelphia Site Of Light-Heavy Go

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold Johnson finally fights the man he should have fought the night he lost the light heavyweight championship.

Earlier this year, and for much lots more money and prestige, Johnson and Hank were slated to go at each other in Miami Beach with the 175-pound crown then worn by the Philadelphian as the prize.

Hank, however, suffered a back injury in training and had to withdraw. Forced to find a new opponent for the champion, the promoters came up with Willie Pastrano.

Pastrano, a decided underdog, won a hotly-disputed decision and the championship. That was on June 1, and Johnson hasn't fought since. There was no return clause in the contract and Pastrano hasn't demonstrated any anxiety to meet Johnson again.

Instead of the $60,000 or so the two would have split up that night in June, Johnson and Hank will pick up about $5,000 each Saturday night. A crowd of some 1,400 is expected in the small arena.

The 35-year-old Johnson, who has a career record of 70 victories and nine defeats, is bitter about the light heavyweight title situation. He admittedly hasnt' much hope Pastrano will give him a return fight.

Hank, who has grown from a middleweight to a 175-pounder in the past two years, owns a 55-18-3 mark, including 37 knockouts.

"I Couldn't Be Happier," Says Bunning After Trade

Pitcher, Triandos Traded For Demeter, Hamilton Of Phils

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I couldn't be happier," said Jim Bunning.

That was the right-handed pitcher's reaction Thursday upon learning he and catcher Gus Triandos had been traded by Detroit to the Philadelphia Phillies for outfielder Don Demeter and pitcher Jack Hamilton.

Had 12-13 Year

"I'm not surprised," added Bunning, who had a disappointing 12-13 record last year after seven outstanding years with the Tigers.

The 32-year-old pitcher was a 20-game winner in 1957 and pitched a no-hitter against Boston the following year.

"We're delighted to get him," said Manager Gene Mauch of the Phillies. "I always regarded Bunning as one of the best pitchers in the American League.

"I think he'll be a big winner for us. His record in All-Star games against the National League has been phenomenal."

The Tigers were equally as delighted in acquiring Demeter, who will play center field with Billy Bruton moving to left. Al Kaline, of course, will be in right.

"We tried to get Felipe Alou from San Francisco," said Manager Charlie Dressen. "But we preferred Demeter. We just didn't think we could get him. Demeter and Alou play about even. Both are excellent outfielders. Demeter may have more power."

Triandos To Alternate

Hamilton, 24, had a 9-12 record with the Phillies in 1962 but spent most of last season at Little Rock in the International League. The tall right-hander was 2-1 with a 5.40 earned-run average with the Phillies.

"Hamilton is a fine prospect," said Rick Ferrell, Tiger vice president. "He has a chance to develop into a winner. He'll have every chance to make the staff."

Redskins Sign Terps' Shiner

Classy Quarterback No. 7 Draft Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins reached next door to suburban College Park, Md., Thursday and signed Dick Shiner, University of Maryland quarterback.

Shiner, ranked as one of the top passers in the nation, was the Redskins' No. 7 choice in Monday's National Football League draft. He was the first Washington draft choice to sign.

But coach bill McPeak explained "we're absolutely delighted that a quarterback of his stature was still left in the seventh round. We rated Shiner as one of the best in the country."

Playing with a team that won three and lost seven, Shiner completed 108 of 222 passes last season for 48.6 per cent and 1,165 yards, including 10 touchdowns. He missed part of the season due to injuries.

This was below his three-year record of 287 completions for 536 passes and 53.5 per cent, good for 3,410 yards and 21 touchdowns.

The Indians were 19-7 last season and went to the finals in the Maryland Class B tourney before bowing to Douglass High at College Park.

Oldtown In Opener

Edgar "Barney" Tucker's Oldtown High floormen entertain Paw Paw High School's Pirates tonight. The Morgan countians rolled up a 72-56 win over Harpers Ferry Tuesday and look too good for Oldtown.

Francis Maleonskie's Bayard High quint, victorious over Tunnelton, 66-61, Wednesday, tests Beverley High School on the latter's court tonight.

Bedford High's Bisons play host to Coach "Stony" Jackson's Flintstone Aggies in the lid-lifter for both schools while John Keller's Hyndman Hornets will try to sting Meyersdale when the Pennsylvania quints tangle at Hyndman.

Beall Hosts Piedmont

Tonight's P.V.C. menu is topped by the Beall-Piedmont tilt at Frostburg where "Huck" Miers' Lions will be seeking win No. 2 after a 44-40 decision over Elk Garden. Beall will be playing its first game of the campaign.

Other action in the conference tonight finds Franklin at Moorefield, West Virginia School for the Deaf at Oakland Southern. Moorefield, West Virginia Deaf, Capon Bridge and the Highlanders of Southern will be opening their season.

Rounding out the heavy Friday card are games between Circleville and Monterey on the Virginians' court and the Alumni at Wardensville contest.

Navy's Roger Staubach Heads AP's All-America Football Team

Sidle, Lewis And Lothridge In Backfield

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Navy's incomparable Roger Staubach was named to the backfield of the 1963 Associated Press All-America football team Thursday with Jimmy Sidle of Auburn, Sherman Lewis of Michigan State and Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech.

Damon Bame, the Southern California guard who is the lone repeater from '62, and Texas Tech end Dave Parks, top National Football League draft pick, are members of a big, agile line averaging 225 pounds per man.

Other early pro draftee up front are guard Bob Brown of Nebraska and tackles Scott Appleton of Texas and Carl Eller of Minnesota. North Carolina end Bob Lacey and Dick Butkus, the superb center-linebacker for Illinois' Big Ten champions, complete the team.

Three Juniors Picked

Butkus, Staubach and Sidle are juniors.

Player of the Year Staubach, the Heisman Trophy winner from Cincinnati, has brought a new dimension of improvisation to quarterback.

While guiding the nation's second-ranked college power to an 8-1 mark going into the Army finale, Jolly Roger has taken a record-shattering cruise through the Navy record book. He has accounted for 1,738 yards in total offense, but statistics can't tell the Staubach story.

Because member newspaper, radio and television selectors based their choices on greatest value, the backfield was not picked by position. The quartet is composed of three quarterbacks and Lewis, a 154-pound halfback.

Sidle Big Factor

An Auburn team expected to have a so-so year wound up with only a single loss and a bowl date. Sidle was a big factor.

Southeastern board members named him best in the area, followed closely, and in order, by Lothridge and 1962 All-America George Mira of Miami.

Sidle is a ball carrier worthy of any halfback assignment and his 1,006 yards rushing left him just 10 yards shy of the national title in that department. He passed for an additional 706 yards for a total offense figure of 1,712.

Typifying a trend in the game, Sidle became one of the Few-quarterbacks in history to gain over 1,000 yards running in a single campaign. The modest orphan boy has been labeled by Coach Shug Jordan as the "best in America."

"On most teams it takes three or four players to do what Billy Lothridge does for us," says Bobby Dodd. "He's the greatest quarterback I have coached in my 32 years at Georgia Tech."

Passed For 1017 Yards

Runner-up in the Heisman balloting, Lothridge passed for 1,017 yards, ran for 223 despite being rushed by some of the nation's finest defenses, punted for a 41-yard average and shattered the NCAA career field goal record, which he boosted to 21.

Three of his 12 field goals this season were booted into the wind against Duke. He bettered four Tech marks in a hard battle with Florida State when he completed 20 of 34 passes for 246 yards and piled up 274 total offense yards.

"Mr. Cool" twice was selected AP Back-of-the-Week during the season.

Despite his small 5-foot-8, 154 pound frame, Lewis was no spot player. The track star with five scoring runs of over 80 yards to his credit was also the defensive back in the demanding Big Ten Conference.

Praised By Coach

While gaining 577 yards rushing, Lewis also led the Spartans in pass receiving, punt and kickoff returns, interception runbacks and was fourth in passing.

Parks, who always wanted to be a halfback but "figured I better hang on to what I had", is a top-flight receiver who also can run, pass and punt. In addition, he's the "monster man" in the Red Raider defense.

Lacey was one of the top pass catchers in the country and in the Atlantic Coast Conference showdown with North Carolina State recovered a fumble deep in Wolfpack territory, setting up a clinching score.

Appleton Stands Out

Texas rode the blocks and tackles of Appleton to an unbeaten, untied season. The 235-pounder who wants to be a teacher-coach after a fling at the pros is a weakside tackle in the Longhorns' flip-flop offense and middle guard on defense.

In his four freshman and varsity seasons at Texas, the teams on which Appleton have played have enjoyed a combined 34-2-1 record.

Overshadowed by All-America teammate Bobby Bell last season, Eller stood out on a less than sensational Gopher squad. The week of the Wisconsin game Eller got married, then led his mates to a 13-0 upset which he was determined would avenge the title deciding loss to the Badgers a year ago.

Spearheaded Huskers

Brown, the 269-pound giant who spearheaded the Nebraska drive to the Big Eight title, caved in two helmets with his blocks and tackles in the first three games. He ruins a pair of size 14E shoes every game.

Brown can play linebacker and defensive end. Against Colorado he raced deep when a halfback was drawn out of position and batted a pass away from a receiver's grasp in the end zone. He also knocked the ball out of a ball carrier's grasp in another eye-opening play.

Linebacker Bame worked more on offense than in '62, especially in scoring opportunity situations. "He's playing even better than he did last year when we were national champions," says assistant coach Mike Giddings.

Butkus was the key figure in a suddenly powerful defense which lifted Illinois from a 2-7 record to the Big Ten crown. The 234-pounder calls defensive dignals, snaps the ball and can punt. He made the difference in the title game with Michigan State.

Mira On 2nd Team

Mira, even sharper than in '62 but with less help and record-breaking passer Don Trull of Baylor were a shade behind the leaders. They were in the second team backfield with Gale Sayers of Kansas and Duke's Jay Wilkinson.

Mel Renfro of Oregon, a second team back last year, was hampered by injuries this season.

Hunters Slay 312 Deer First Day In Allegany

Buck Tagged With Watch Cover Bagged By John C. Cessna

Hunters' guns accounted for 312 deer yesterday in Allegany county on the opening day of Maryland's first nine-day season.

Ninety-seven of the whitetails were checked at the LaVale Barracks of the Maryland State Police while 92 were reported checked by John Shipway at Shipway's Inn, Green Ridge.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, announced the reports from four Allegany county and three Washington county checking stations.

Buck Is Tagged

One of the most unusual kills of the day was credited to John C. Cessna, of the Bedford Road, who bagged a five-point 85-pound buck on Evitt's Mountain which had the back of a pocket watch clipped to its ear. Inscribed on the inside of the cover was "Cessna, 6-8-62." It was a coincidence because the nimrod who shot the deer was named Cessna but he had no knowledge of the person who tagged the animal. It was presumed that the deer was once a pet and was tagged by the person who released it.

Yesterday's total bag was 108 less than were slain on the first day of the 7-day season in 1962 when 420 bucks fell in Allegany county. The record of 424 was established in 1960. Last year's 7-day total was 700.

Washington Total 206

Washington county's unofficial kill yesterday was 206.

Minke last evening stated that hunting pressure was not as great as most opening days in Allegany county. The deer appeared to be heavier than last year when the average was 93 pounds dog dressed. Most of the animals were immature and were about 17 months old but there were a few three-year olds with eight or more points to the antler.

The LaVale state police barracks checked eight deer killed in Garrett county in addition to the 97 from Allegany county for a day's total of 105.

State Police, LaVale	97
Shipway's Inn, Green Ridge	92

Babe Parilli Is Named AFL Player Of Week

Stars After Almost Losing Boston Job

Boston (AP) —Ageless Babe Parilli was "delighted and surprised Thursday at his selection as player of the week in the American Football League — a week after he had almost lost his job with the Boston Patriots.

Paradoxically the strong-armed quarterback's seeming inability to execute a simple flip pass led first to his threatened benching then to his selection as the AFL's top performer for his effort three days later.

With the score tied 7-7 early in the third quarter and Boston's highly vocal fans deploring the team's inability to move against Buffalo, the 34-year-old quarterback noted the stunting Bills' defense massed for a safety blitz.

The Babe had tossed a touchdown pass to Larry Garron who went 44 yards for one touchdown. He set up another with a 63-yard pass to Art Graham. Parilli then raced across with that one, which proved to be the winning touchdown.

Parilli, the player choice of The Associated Press, had difficulty executing a play put in the play book last week by Coach Mike Holovak. That difficulty led Holovak to give some serious thought to using sub Tom Yewcic against Buffalo.

Cougars Coach To Be Released

Sutherland's Pact Terminates Jan. 3

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) —The contract of Washington State football Coach Jim Sutherland will be terminated Jan. 3, 1964 by mutual agreement of Sutherland and University officials, WSU Athletic Director Stan Bates said Thursday night.

Bates said the move was being made "in the best interests of the athletic program."

He said a settlement is being negotiated between Sutherland and the university on his contract which has another year to run.

The 49-year-old Sutherland has been head coach at WSU since 1956. He came from the University of Washington where he was an assistant coach in 1954-55.

At Washington State, Sutherland compiled a 37-39-4 record in eight full seasons. His best was in 1958 when his Cougars were 7-3. He also had winning seasons in 1957, 1959 and 1962. WSU posted a 3-6-1 mark this past season.

Navy To Seek 6th Straight Over Cadets

Pep Rally Held By Midshipmen

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Navy Coach Wayne Hardin and his players pledged Thursday night a fifth straight football victory over Army Saturday despite any psychological factors on the side of ending a Cadet losing string.

"Psychology means nothing," quarterback Roger Staubach told the cheering midshipmen at a pep rally. "The only thing that counts is the hitting on the football field.

"This team has made a vow to beat Army. We're going to put out to our maximum ability and no psychology or Army football team is going to stop us."

Staubach said if any player broke an arm or leg in the process he would consider it a badge of honor.

There were also some veiled references to the Cotton Bowl game that the Middies are expected to play Jan. 1 if they get past Army.

The 4,000-man brigade was chanting "We're No. 1" when Hardin stepped to the microphone on Thomson Field.

"I agree with you," he said. "It just may take us a little longer to prove it."

Royals Defeat Boston, 118-108

Oscar Robertson Scores 48 Points

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Oscar Robertson poured in a season high of 48 points and veteran Jack Twyman delivered clutch baskets in the fourth period as the Cincinnati Royals snapped the Boston Celtics' eight-game win streak, 118-108, at Cincinnati Garden Thursday night.

Cincinnati, which owns the only two victories over the Celtics this season, took the lead at 78-75 with 4:30 left in the third period and never trailed thereafter. Jerry Lucas, taking a perfect pass from Robertson, drove against Boston's Bill Russell for a three - point play, which put the Royals ahead for keeps.

Robertson, falling only one point short of his career high of 49 points, connected on 18 of 29 shots from the field in pacing the Royals to their most decisive win over Boston in more than 25 games. Lucas had 21 points and 21 rebounds while Twyman scored 16 points.

John Havlicek led the Celtics with 22 points, followed by Sam Jones with 21. Russel pulled down a game-high 23 rebounds but could score only five points.

Navy To Seek 6th Straight Over Cadets

Pep Rally Held By Midshipmen

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Navy Coach Wayne Hardin and his players pledged Thursday night a fifth straight football victory over Army Saturday despite any psychological factors on the side of ending a Cadet losing string.

"Psychology means nothing," quarterback Roger Staubach told the cheering midshipmen at a pep rally. "The only thing that counts is the hitting on the football field.

"This team has made a vow to beat Army. We're going to put out to our maximum ability and no psychology or Army football team is going to stop us."

Staubach said if any player broke an arm or leg in the process he would consider it a badge of honor.

There were also some veiled references to the Cotton Bowl game that the Middies are expected to play Jan. 1 if they get past Army.

The 4,000-man brigade was chanting "We're No. 1" when Hardin stepped to the microphone on Thomson Field.

"I agree with you," he said. "It just may take us a little longer to prove it."

Royals Defeat Boston, 118-108

Oscar Robertson Scores 48 Points

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Oscar Robertson poured in a season high of 48 points and veteran Jack Twyman delivered clutch baskets in the fourth period as the Cincinnati Royals snapped the Boston Celtics' eight-game win streak, 118-108, at Cincinnati Garden Thursday night.

Cincinnati, which owns the only two victories over the Celtics this season, took the lead at 78-75 with 4:30 left in the third period and never trailed thereafter. Jerry Lucas, taking a perfect pass from Robertson, drove against Boston's Bill Russell for a three - point play, which put the Royals ahead for keeps.

Robertson, falling only one point short of his career high of 49 points, connected on 18 of 29 shots from the field in pacing the Royals to their most decisive win over Boston in more than 25 games. Lucas had 21 points and 21 rebounds while Twyman scored 16 points.

John Havlicek led the Celtics with 22 points, followed by Sam Jones with 21. Russel pulled down a game-high 23 rebounds but could score only five points.

Grocer Assaulted In Robbery Attempt

George R. Pratt Is Struck On Head

George R. Pratt, who operates Pratt's Grocery Store, 251 Williams Street, was hit on the head by one of the men. They did not get any money from the store in the incident, which occurred about 8:30 p. m.

Pratt was able to furnish police with a sketchy description of the two men and after being taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment he went to police headquarters and looked over photos in the Detective Bureau in an attempt to identify the two men.

Pickup Issued

Police issued a pickup for one suspect who Pratt thought might be one of the two men who entered his store. Pratt said the two men came into his store and inquired about some pepperoni and the price of a gallon of milk.

Pratt proceeded to the rear of the meat counter and began cutting the meat. He said the two men approached the corner of a counter, and while his back was turned to them, one hit him on the head with an object, presumably a soft drink bottle.

Assailants Flee

Pratt said he fell to the floor after being hit and rolled over in a groggy condition. When he got up the two men had fled from the store and drove a small car down an alley to Cecelia Street before Pratt could get further identification of the car.

During the incident behind the meat counter a neighbor's daughter was starting to enter the store but saw the scuffle, ran home and told her father, who called police.

Cheat River Dam Receives Much Support

Opponents Favor Low-Level Idea

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI)—A public hearing conducted here Thursday by the U. S. Army Engineers on a proposed $140 million dam on Cheat River at nearby Rowlesburg received much support from proponents and very little opposition.

The only opposition voiced at the hearing, presided over by Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., were officials of United Mine Workers union District 31, with headquarters in Fairmont, and attorney W. Del Roy Harner, representing Tucker County and the town of Parsons.

Opponents from Tucker County proposed a series of low-level dams in the area which engineers contend would be useless and not feasible.

The Corps has been conducting a study on the proposal since the early 1940s on a $234,000 allocation from Congress. This is one of the last hearings before their studies and recommendations are presented early next year to Congress.

The proposed rock-filled structure would be the highest in the Pittsburgh district. The reservoir would be about 30 miles long, extending from Rowlesburg to near Parsons.

The proposed dam would cover about 9,100 acres and in addition, about 6,000 acres would be set aside for development of recreational facilities, the Corps said.

Choirs Unite For Christmas Choral Concert

Barton Methodist Choir will sing "There is Room for Thee" by R. E. Elliott, and "O Message of the Ages" by R. E. Nolte. Miss Ruby Tichnell is organist and Mrs. Monta Jean Kyle is the directress.

An organ solo entitled "A Christmas Prelude" by G. Young, will be played by Wayne Lenke of Cumberland.

Lonaconing Methodist Church Choir directed by Roger Cook will sing "Mary A Baby" by Stewart Landon and selections from Christmas Cantata, "Born A King" by J. W. Peterson. Mrs. Richard Grandstaff is organist.

Veterans Organizations Recall Pearl Harbor Day

December 7, 1941, the "day of infamy" and known to all Americans and most of the world as Pearl Harbor Day, will be recalled here Saturday by area veterans' organizations as a day of rededication to American freedom.

In a joint statement from the several veterans' organizations, over the signature of Vernon A. Crable, veterans call for a quiet and thoughtful observance of Pearl Harbor Day.

The statement says in part, "It is noted that during the past year, a great deal of TV time and magazine space has been directed to the interesting historical aspects of Japan's preparation for and execution of the sneak attack upon Pearl Harbor.

"The positions and reservations of various political and military officials of the Japanese government relative to the attack; the experiences of spies and junior officers preparing for an executing the attack are gone over in detail.

"The veterans' organizations of this community welcome these presentations of stories bearing true historical facts about the circumstances surrounding the successful attack by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor.

"Without rancor or prejudice," the statement continues, "we observe this 'day of infamy' with the hope that all Americans will memorialize those who lost their lives in the attack upon Pearl Harbor and that all citizens will rededicate themselves to the eternal vigilance necessary to maintain our freedom, and to insure that a new Pearl Harbor shall never occur again."

It was also jointly announced by the veterans that the post homes of the organizations will hold open house all day Saturday. Between the hours of 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. Baltimore Resident Has Heart Attack

Three men, including a 38-year-old Baltimore resident, died yesterday while deer hunting in this area and two Flintstone men were accidentally shot while hunting.

Maryland State Police said Kenneth Murray Culbertson of Baltimore suffered a fatal heart attack after climbing up a steep hill through heavy underbrush on the east slope of Polish Mountain yesterday morning.

Chester M. Jenkins, 58, of Fort Ashby, was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital and authorities said he died of natural causes while he was deer hunting in the Reeses Mill area about eight miles southwest of Fort Ashby.

Mava Speichler, 48, of Mountain Lake Park, was pronounced dead of an apparent heart attack at Garrett Memorial Hospital. He had been hunting with a companion, police said, and suffered the attack while walking through some snow to a farm house.

Accidentally shot were John C. Vance, 28, of Flintstone, who was reported in satisfactory condition last night at Sacred Heart Hospital with a left foot injury, and Earl L. Rice, 19, who was admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday morning suffering from a gunshot wound of his right hand.

Rice was struck by a rifle bullet which was fired by a hunter from the Pikesville area, police said. Rice was hunting in Bedford County just across the state line north of Flintstone.

Has Heart Attack

Police said Mr. Culbertson was hunting with a brother-in-law, Kermit G. Fincham, also of Baltimore, when he suffered the heart attack about 10:30 a. m. four and ahalf miles east of Flintstone.

Trooper R. E. Alderton investigated the man's death. The victim's bodys was taken to the Silcox Funeral Home and later to the Duda Funeral Home in Baltimore.

Police said Mr. Vance was walking through an open field yesterday when a 12-guage shotgun he was carrying discharged and hit him in the left foot. The man walked about 200 yards to his home and was taken to the hospital by his brother.

Grocer Assaulted In Robbery Attempt

George R. Pratt Is Struck On Head

City police last night were looking for two young men in their 20s in connection with the assault and attempted robbery of a local groceryman.

George R. Pratt, who operates Pratt's Grocery Store, 251 Williams Street, was hit on the head by one of the men. They did not get any money from the store in the incident, which occurred about 8:30 p. m.

Pratt was able to furnish police with a sketchy description of the two men and after being taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment he went to police headquarters and looked over photos in the Detective Bureau in an attempt to identify the two men.

Pickup Issued

Police issued a pickup for one suspect who Pratt thought might be one of the two men who entered his store. Pratt said the two men came into his store and inquired about some pepperoni and the price of a gallon of milk.

Pratt proceeded to the rear of the meat counter and began cutting the meat. He said the two men approached the corner of a counter, and while his back was turned to them, one hit him on the head with an object, presumably a soft drink bottle.

Assailants Flee

Pratt said he fell to the floor after being hit and rolled over in a groggy condition. When he got up the two men had fled from the store and drove a small car down an alley to Cecelia Street before Pratt could get further identification of the car.

During the incident behind the meat counter a neighbor's daughter was starting to enter the store but saw the scuffle, ran home and told her father, who called police.

Detective Kenneth Morrissey showed the photos of local residents with police records to Pratt who picked out one suspect. A pickup for the man was issued by Detective Morrissey.

Cheat River Dam Receives Much Support

Opponents Favor Low-Level Idea

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI)—A public hearing conducted here Thursday by the U. S. Army Engineers on a proposed $140 million dam on Cheat River at nearby Rowlesburg received much support from proponents and very little opposition.

The only opposition voiced at the hearing, presided over by Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., were officials of United Mine Workers union District 31, with headquarters in Fairmont, and attorney W. Del Roy Harner, representing Tucker County and the town of Parsons.

Opponents from Tucker County proposed a series of low-level dams in the area which engineers contend would be useless and not feasible.

The Corps has been conducting a study on the proposal since the early 1940s on a $234,000 allocation from Congress. This is one of the last hearings before their studies and recommendations are presented early next year to Congress.

The proposed rock-filled structure would be the highest in the Pittsburgh district. The reservoir would be about 30 miles long, extending from Rowlesburg to near Parsons.

The proposed dam would cover about 9,100 acres and in addition, about 6,000 acres would be set aside for development of recreational facilities, the Corps said.

Veterans Organizations Recall Pearl Harbor Day

December 7, 1941, the "day of infamy" and known to all Americans and most of the world as Pearl Harbor Day, will be recalled here Saturday by area veterans' organizations as a day of rededication to American freedom.

In a joint statement from the several veterans' organizations, over the signature of Vernon A. Crable, veterans call for a quiet and thoughtful observance of Pearl Harbor Day.

The statement says in part, "It is noted that during the past year, a great deal of TV time and magazine space has been directed to the interesting historical aspects of Japan's preparation for and execution of the sneak attack upon Pearl Harbor.

"The positions and reservations of various political and military officials of the Japanese government relative to the attack; the experiences of spies and junior officers preparing for an executing the attack are gone over in detail.

"The veterans' organizations of this community welcome these presentations of stories bearing true historical facts about the circumstances surrounding the successful attack by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor.

"Without rancor or prejudice," the statement continues, "we observe this 'day of infamy' with the hope that all Americans will memorialize those who lost their lives in the attack upon Pearl Harbor and that all citizens will rededicate themselves to the eternal vigilance necessary to maintain our freedom, and to insure that a new Pearl Harbor shall never occur again."

It was also jointly announced by the veterans that the post homes of the organizations will hold open house all day Saturday. Between the hours of 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, and Voiture 164, Forty and Eight, will serve a free buffet luncheon in their social rooms. The public is invited.

Mr. Pancake is a director of the Production Credit Association of Romney. Mr. Balenger is a director of the Federal Land Bank Association of Winchester, Va. Both operate farms and have been identified with agricultural organizations for a number of years. Both have been on the Farm Credit Board of Baltimore since 1955.

Three men, including a 38-year-old Baltimore resident, died yesterday while deer hunting in this area and two Flintstone men were accidentally shot while hunting.

Maryland State Police said Kenneth Murray Culbertson of Baltimore suffered a fatal heart attack after climbing up a steep hill through heavy underbrush on the east slope of Polish Mountain yesterday morning.

Chester M. Jenkins, 58, of Fort Ashby, was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital and authorities said he died of natural causes while he was deer hunting in the Reeses Mill area about eight miles southwest of Fort Ashby.

Mava Speichler, 48, of Mountain Lake Park, was pronounced dead of an apparent heart attack at Garrett Memorial Hospital. He had been hunting with a companion, police said, and suffered the attack while walking through some snow to a farm house.

Rice was struck by a rifle bullet which was fired by a hunter from the Pikesville area, police said. Rice was hunting in Bedford County just across the state line north of Flintstone.

Police said Mr. Culbertson was hunting with a brother-in-law, Kermit G. Fincham, also of Baltimore, when he suffered the heart attack about 10:30 a. m. four and ahalf miles east of Flintstone.

Trooper R. E. Alderton investigated the man's death. The victim's bodys was taken to the Silcox Funeral Home and later to the Duda Funeral Home in Baltimore.

Police said Mr. Vance was walking through an open field yesterday when a 12-guage shotgun he was carrying discharged and hit him in the left foot. The man walked about 200 yards to his home and was taken to the hospital by his brother.
